THE EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

15TH YEAR. NO. 249. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., TUESDAY, APRIL 3, 1900. TWO CENTS

DAVIDSON BY 679, THOMPSON BY 900

WEISEND AVERAGED 18 VOTES TO A PRECINCT

The Total Vote Cast For Mayor Was 3,046 and For Marshal 2,856--Bryan Led All With 2,181.

Election day is over and the Republican nominee, W. C. Davidson, defeated Mayor Charles F. Bough, the Prohibition candidate, by 679 votes, the largest majority ever given a Republican candidate for that office.

The municipal campaign which closed yesterday was a hot one. Hardly any person expected the majority of Davidson to be so large, and on all sides were heard the statement that the race between Davidson and Bough would be close, and there would not be 200 votes between them. They based their statements on the fact that a great many things had been said about the church people supporting Bough, and that they did to some extent is shown by his vote, 1,102.

The success of Davidson was made assured by his friends, who left no stone unturned to land him a winner, and there is no doubt he is the most popular candidate the party has had in many years, and those who know him best state that he will make a splendid chief executive for the city.

As soon as the polls closed last evening the streets were crowded with people eager and anxious to hear the result, but they had to wait a long time. The Davidson supporters were making lots of noise and the small boys joined in the spirit of the thing and organized horn brigades to make tours of the city. By 9 o'clock it closely resembled the final night of a presidential campaign. The Bough voters were not much in evidence, but took the matter quietly, feeling secure that their man would succeed himself as mayor.

Long before the first precinct was received Washington street in front of the News Review office was crowded with people and every few minutes a partial report of the precincts was placed on the large bulletin board, showing that Davidson was in the load in all the precincts and constantly gaining.

The Bough supporters gave it up when this news was received and the only thing to be discussed was the total of Davidson's majority, and it was placed anywhere from 100 to 1,000. When the Fifth ward came in, giving Davidson 150 and Bough 135 and was placed on the board it was greeted with loud cheers, as the Davidson people realized they had nothing more to fear, as this was conceded to be Bough's strongest ward. Later returns proved that they were wrong, as the second precinct of the Fourth ward only went for Davidson by four votes. The News Review was the first to receive the complete vote of the city, and while the people at city hall were yet figuring with two or three precincts shy, the total of the city was given to the people who braved the weather to stand out in front of the News Review office in order that they might get the result and get it right.

There was a great deal of cutting yesterday, and but few straight tickets were voted, which accounts for the unusually late count.

The race for marshal between Thompson and McMillan is the only other race of the day in which much interest was taken, and while nobody expected to see McMillan land a winner, yet they expected to see him give Thompson a close chase. Thompson surprised even his best friends by beating McMillan 900 votes, and running not far behind the head of the ticket even with the strong fight that was made against him.

The total vote of the city and township was 3,143, and to Street Commissioner Bryan belongs the credit of leading the ticket with 2,181 votes, closely followed by Clerk Hanley with 2,178. Cemetery Trustee Dickey came next with 2,094, and City Treasurer Herbert was fourth with 2,083.

The women did not avail themselves of the privilege given them of voting on the candidates for board of education, and there was not 10 women voted in the entire city.

Weisend, the Democratic nominee, was not a figure in the race, and when his vote was totalled up he had only 163 votes to his credit. It is estimated that Davidson and Bough divided his vote, but it is conceded that a large end of it went to Davidson, and Bough's vote was made up from disgruntled Republicans.

Davidson's plurality over Bough was 679, and over Weisend 1,648. His majority was 516.

Thompson's majority over McMillan was 900.

Herbert for treasurer had a plurality of 1,844 over Potts and 1,699 over Bowman. His majority was 1,459.

Bryan for street commissioner had a plurality over McKenna of 1,957, and over Coventry of 1,781. His majority was 1,557.

McCarron for justice of the peace had a plurality of 1,680 over Cole, and over Morlan 1,362. His majority was 1,117.

Beardmore for township trustee had a majority of 1,669 over Shay.

Wells, the lowest man for school board on the Republican ticket had a majority of 1,611 over Kerr, the highest man on the Democratic ticket

COOK BEATEN FIVE TO ONE

O. D. Nice Had a Wonderful Victory For Council In the Second Ward.

MARSHALL HAD A CLOSE CALL

And Arnold Led East End Vote But the Doctor Had 33 Over Miles.

HEDDLESTON, CRIPPS, M'LANE.

Although the entire Republican councilmanic ticket was elected yesterday there was at least two surprises when the vote was announced.

The first surprise came when the Fifth ward returns were received, and the comparatively close call Miles had given Marshall was announced. Marshall only defeated his Prohibition opponent by 33 votes, while Arnold, the other Republican candidate, had 68 votes to the good.

In the Second ward it had been conceded that Cook would give Nice a hard fight, and the Democrats made strenuous efforts to land their candidate a winner. They got out cards and went at it with a vim, but it was no use. Nice only beat Cook 408 votes, running ahead of the ticket in both precincts.

The vote by precincts is as follows:

A RAZORBACK HUNT.

The Experience of One Rancher Who, Instead of Doing His Butchering Out In the Hills, Attempted to Drive His Hogs to Market.

While it is generally accounted that the sheep and Angora goat furnish most of the revenues to the rancher in the broken and wooded country south of the Staked plains and west of the Colorado river, it is nevertheless a fact that the razorback hog contributes a full share. Probably there is no country anywhere better adapted to the production of cheap pork. The hills are covered with cedar and a great variety of scrub oak trees, and the canyons and river valleys are heavily wooded with pecan and Spanish walnut, so that there is always an abundance of excellent mast, and it might be mentioned that the cedar berries are considered equal to corn in lard producing qualities.

With this sort of feed, which is always abundant, the expense of care and feeding is removed, the animals simply running at large over the country, so that the only outlay required is that of the first cost of a few head for a start. Running loose in this way they are not subject to the diseases common to the hog in the sty or feed lot, and, being excellent fighters, they hold their own with the wolves and other wild animals which prey on the sheep and goats. Thus they multiply very rapidly.

In order to get the benefit of the increase in his stock, however, it is necessary for the rancher to get his mark on the pigs. As this, owing to the roughness of the country and the wildness of the sows, is no small task, it is generally the custom for all the hog owners in a given section to turn out together with their dogs and practically "round up" the range.

Compared with one of these "hog hunts" a cattle "round up" is a quiet and commonplace affair. On the morning appointed the dogs are turned loose and started out on a hog trail, and the men ride after them just as on a wolf chase. As the pigs cannot hold out very long one of them is soon caught, and his squeals bring back the rest of the bunch to his aid. As soon as the pig is free the sows form a circle around the pigs, from which they now and then dash out at their tormentors and all the while grunting like the rattling of a hundred old wagons. By the time the uproar has reached its full height the hunters ride up and hiss the dogs on to seize the sows. When one is caught, two men go to the assistance of the dog, one with a club to beat off the other hogs, the other with a bit of rope to tie the one seized. When all of them have thus been put out of the way of fighting, the pigs are caught and marked. Then the sows are given their liberty, and the dogs start out on a new trail. When it happens that there are hogs belonging to several different men, the pigs are simply divided.

While the work of "marking" is more like sport than labor it is not less exciting than that of getting the hogs ready for market, for as it is impossible to drive them any distance—even to the corrals at the ranches—it is necessary simply to butcher them out in the hills.

So along in the early part of the winter, after the new mast has fallen and the hogs are as fat as they will get, the ranchers load their wagons with salt, grub, kettles and lard cans, take their dogs and Winchesters and strike out for the hills. They make camp near some spring or water hole and then begin the work of "killing," which includes the rendering of the lard and salting of the meat. It is like a great hunt. Whenever a wagon load of lard and meat has been put up it is taken to the nearest ranch and left there until the "killing" season is over; then it is loaded again and freighted to the nearest railroad point, where it is sold at the market price.

It is said that only one man in that country ever tried driving his hogs to market. That was "Uncle" Ben Pepper, who lives a few miles above Junction City, on the South Llano river. He had, he supposed, about 300 head of fat hogs, and the idea of that "killing" worried him. So he hired all the men in the country, got all the dogs in Kimble and Edwards counties and "rounded up" all the hogs to be found. It was, of course, impossible to keep the herd together, and as it scattered Ben ordered his men to separate a little and keep moving toward Kerrville.

At noon on the fourth day the line was within half a mile of the Guadaloupe river, the men were half a mile apart and every dog worn out. Then Ben decided that he would like to know how many hogs he had, as after passing the Guadaloupe it would be impossible to see them in the open again. So he ordered the ends of the line to swing in and close up toward the river. It was nearly sunset when the circle was completed, and he climbed into a tall pecan so as to get a better view of the hogs when they should come swarming out into the river. He watched intently until night was falling; then he saw a lean, old sow emerge from the bushes and go down to drink, and a moment later the drivers began coming out. He nearly fell out of the tree. He has never tried driving since.—Kansas City Journal.

The Turkish Autocrat.

The sultan of Turkey rises at 6 and after devoting the whole morning to work with his secretaries breakfasts at noon. After this he takes a drive or a row on the lake in his vast park. At 8 he dines and amuses himself during the evening with his family, listening while his daughter plays on the piano. He is extremely fond of music. The sultan dresses like an English gentleman, but invariably in a frock coat, the breast of which on great occasions is richly embroidered and blazing with decorations. There are over 400 cooks and scullions employed in the imperial palace.

The famous gardens of Versailles have cost £8,000,000.

The woman who mislays her hat and looks for it in her purse, among other impossible places, is very like the physician who looks in all sort of impossible places for the cause of a disease. The heart begins to act irregularly and straightway there's an examination of the heart to find what is interfering with it. The liver gives trouble, and is dosed with drugs and pounded with pills to bring to light the cause, and all the time the cause of the trouble is in the stomach.

The intimate connection of the stomach with the heart and the other vital organs, necessarily results in the sympathy of these organs with any derangement or disease of the stomach and the organs of digestion and nutrition.

Thousands have been cured of palpitation, liver trouble, shortness of breath, pain in the side, backache, and numerous other complaints by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This medicine acts directly upon the stomach, the organs of digestion and nutrition and the blood making glands, and the fact that it cures so many forms of disease is the best proof that these diseases originate in the stomach and must be cured through the stomach.

"I had been a great sufferer for several years and my family doctor said I would not be a living man in two years, but, thank God, I am still living," writes Mr. George W. Trustow, of Lipscomb, Augusta Co., Va. "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is what saved my life. I had heart trouble so bad that I could not lie on my left side without a great deal of pain. I was nearly past work when I commenced your medicine, but I can do about as much work now as any man. I cannot say too much for the benefit I have received."

OTHER ALTERATIONS ALLEGED

By the Two Tayler Members of the Committee, But Judge Moore Declines to Concur.

TAYLER WINS BY TWO MAJORITY

The following dispatch from Lisbon, giving the official report of the committee which investigated the Washington township vote at the congressional primaries, shows that R. W. Tayler keeps the four delegates from that township by a majority of two votes on the recount. If the four ballots said to have been tampered with, had been counted for Baker, he would have had two majority. The committee is unanimous in declaring Tayler carried the township by two votes.

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special.)—The special committee appointed by the Republican central committee to investigate the returns for congressman from Washington township at the primaries March 24 has reported as follows:

"Hon. I. B. Cameron, Chairman Columbiana County Republican Central Committee:

"We, the committee appointed by you at the convention held at Lisbon, O., upon the 27th ultimo, to investigate and make report upon the recent county primary election held in Washington township, beg leave to submit the following report:

"We find upon the evidence before us that the election held in Washington township was a legal election and conducted in all material respects in conformity with the laws relating thereto. We find further that the officials and assistants in charge of said election were both honest and faithful and not guilty of any fraud or attempt to defraud therein.

The Only Peculiarity.

"The only peculiarity of said election making an investigation necessary was that there were 12 more ballots in the ballot box than there were names on the poll books kept by the clerk, and the reason assigned for this by the Washington township board of election—that the clerk did not record the names as fast as they were polled—seems to the committee, on hearing the evidence, to be correct and adequate.

"The fact that a number of persons well known to the board of election and remembered by them cast ballots at said election, but whose names were not recorded on the clerk's book strengthens the explanation. The vote for candidates for congress being a close one, perhaps required an examination.

The Official Count.

"The official count made at Salineville gave Tayler 200; Baker, 194, and the total ballots counted exceeded by 12 the number of names upon the clerk's book. Had the last 12 votes not been counted, we find from the evidence that the vote would have stood Tayler 195, Baker 187. It is evident therefrom that whether all the ballots in the box should have been counted, as the Washington township board did do, or all except the last 12, as strict compliance with the law may require, Mr. Tayler had a majority, in the first case of six votes and in the second case of eight votes.

The Recount.

"This committee recounted said ballots as they were when the ballot box, ballots, poll books and tally sheets were delivered to us, and we made said recount in the presence of W. R. Dutton and E. R. Blazy, who were the judge and supervisor, respectively, at said election in said township. One of them was a supporter of Mr. Tayler and one a supporter of Mr. Baker. The 12 extra ballots were shown us, and they were the last counted by us. The result of our count without counting the last 12 ballots was: Tayler, 193; Baker, 189, and 6 for neither candidate.

"We then counted the last 12 ballots and found them to be: 1 for Tayler, 7 for Baker and 4 with an X mark to the left of each name of the candidates for congress.

Dutton and Blazy Interrupt

"Thereupon and immediately, and without being asked therefor, both Dutton and Blazy declared that this was wrong, that said 12 ballots should be 5 for Tayler and 7 for Baker; and, after looking at said 4 ballots with the X mark to the left of each of the congressional candidates' names, declared that these four had been altered and evidently had an extra X mark placed upon them in the space to the left of the name of Mr. Baker; and both of them (Dutton and Blazy) repeated that said 12 ballots were the last they counted and strung, and when so counted and strung had been put in the ballot box and said ballot box locked on the evening of March 24, said ballots then showing 5 for Tayler and 7 for Baker.

"The result of our count, including said 12 ballots, counting the said four ballots for Tayler is: Tayler, 198; Baker, 196; a majority of two votes for Mr. Tayler.

The Finding.

"We, therefore, find that upon the foregoing facts, Mr. Tayler carried said township at said primary election for the office of congressman; and we would respectfully recommend the issue of proper certificates of election to the delegates in Washingtown township chosen by Mr. Tayler.

"The four ballots of said 12, which we find as aforesaid, were evidently changed after said ballot box and its contents left the possession of the election officers on the evening of March 24.

"Respectfully submitted,

ROSS W. FIRESTONE.

C. C. CONNELL,
Committee.

Moore Wouldn't Sign This.

A supplemental report, which Judge J. G. Moore, the Baker committeeman, refused to sign, is attached:

"We, the undersigned members of said committee, are of the opinion that other alterations may have been made, and probably were made, in the ballots for congress, in addition to the four alterations above noted and at the same time; and that the original count was correct.

TRAPPED BY AN AMERICAN.

He Commanded the Boers When They Ambushed the British and Took Their Guns.

BUSHMANS KOP, April 3.—The Boers, who were hidden in the spruit when the British guns were captured, were commanded by Reyesman, a German-American.

The Boers retired when they discovered the British scouts, leaving two Dutch military attaches, one of them dangerously wounded, in the hands of the British. All the wounded are doing well.

Every one agrees that but for Colonel Broadwood's splendid handling of his troops, not a member of the force would have escaped.

Railway Track Guarded—Pilot Train Runs Ahead.

LONDON, April 3.—Queen Victoria left Windsor at 9:30 last evening, enroute for Ireland. Her majesty is accompanied by Princess Christian and Princess Henry, of Battenberg, and is attended by the Countess of Antrim,

PRINCE ALEXANDER OF TECK.

He Commanded Captured British Convoy, but Escaped.

GOVERNOR TAYLOR MAY BE INDICTED.

Democrats Will Make a Charge of Usurpation of Office Against Him.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 3.—The April term of the Franklin circuit court and the grand jury working under it, which will investigate the assassination of Governor Goebel, began work.

Judge Cantrill's charge to the grand jury was brief and devoid of anything of a sensational nature. He said in part:

"You know the horrible situation in this county better than I can depict it. I hope and believe this grand jury, realizing the responsibilities resting upon it, will discharge its entire duty fearlessly, fairly and impartially, and if it does, no man or set of men can lay complaint at your door when your labors terminate."

While nothing was said by Judge Cantrill in his charge concerning it, it is understood that Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin will recommend the bringing of an indictment against Republican Governor Taylor and all the other Republican state officers, on the charge of usurpation of the offices they are claiming to hold. During the court preliminaries, Attorney James Andrew Scott, for the Democrats, filed an amended petition in the cases of the Democratic state officers, other than governor and lieutenant governor, against the defendants, in which damages for alleged usurpation and unlawful retention of the offices in dispute are asked.

The suit of Alonzo Walker against Republican Governor Taylor and Adjutant General Collier, for $50,000, was called, but the defendants had not filed answers and the case was passed. Walker was arrested by the militia while serving a civil process on Governor Taylor, a few days after the assassination of Goebel, and was held as a prisoner several days.

Fat Man Wanted a Correction.

"That was a fine report you had of the explosion," puffed the fat man, who did not know there was an elevator in the building and climbed three flights of stairs to the editor's office, "a fine report, I must say." And sarcasm fairly rang in his tones. "Did you know that it was my furnace that blew up, that I stand the loss, that but for me you wouldn't have the item?"

"If you are D. J. Jones, we did."

"I am D. Jacobus Jones. You didn't even spell out my middle name. You'd think that my wife and hired girl were the whole thing the way you wrote it up."

"The girl was terribly burned, and your wife was badly hurt while saving the girl. You don't appear to have had any hand in the matter."

"Didn't, hey? Did you notice how slowly I sat down when I came in here? Did you hear me stifle a groan? I'm sore as a felon from the crown of my head to the sole of my foot. That's what I am. But there's not a word about that."

"Were you in the explosion?"

"No. Wish I had been. When I heard the report, I knew some one must be hurt. I fell down stairs. I ran five blocks for a doctor. When I got home, I was so exhausted that I had to retire, and this morning I had to roll out of bed on a chair to get up. It wasn't my fault that the doctor was out or that an ambulance was at the house when I got back. You can say that I showed great presence of mind and got out and humped myself or stop my paper. Good day!"—Detroit Free Press.

They Pay the Rent.

"There is," says a traveler, "a stock saying which they have at Queenstown, Ireland. It is there the steamers pick up the mails, which can leave London 12 hours later than the boats do Liverpool and overtake them there. Frequently, however, delays occur, and then the passengers kill time by going ashore, and the native is always in wait to sell them shillalahs and other things, such as bog oak jewelry, canes, etc., which are supposedly indigenous to and characteristic of Ireland.

"Some of the shillalahs are wonderful and awful to look upon and have no possible place in real life, their only object being to take in the unwary transatlantic traveler. One I saw there had a head fully six inches in diameter, with projecting knobs and roots thickly covering it. It was so heavy that to lift it was an effort and to carry it any distance without using a dray a physical impossibility. It was a murderous looking weapon, and a blow from it on the head would have done for any living thing, even a darky from Georgia.

"'Why,' I asked in my surprise, 'what on earth do you use this for?'

"'That?' he rejoined. 'Arrah, that's what we pay the rint with.'

"I've got it yet."—New York Tribune.

Adhesive and Pressed Stamps.

"It is not necessary to do that, as is commonly supposed," said a lawyer. "You may take your scissors and cut out the adhesive (not the impressed) stamp and stick it fast to your new envelope with mucilage notwithstanding the adhering piece of the old envelope.

"It does not look nice and may become detached in the mail, but if the stamp is a genuine, unused, adhesive stamp it is not questioned. The government when it sells an adhesive 2 cent stamp undertakes for such consideration to transport and deliver to destination the letter to which it is affixed. The fact that it has a piece of an envelope to which it was formerly attached, but not used or deposited for mailing, does not relieve the government to execute its part of the contract when the letter is deposited for mailing, the stamp being otherwise perfect.

"An impressed stamp, however, cut from an envelope is defective and invalid for postage purposes. It is astonishing how many of these are used, some people apparently being unable or too ignorant to discriminate between adhesive and impressed stamps."—Washington Star.

INFORMED OF A PLOT.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The chief interest in Governor Steunenberg's testimony before the Coeur d'Alene investigation was in his continuance of the recital, begun at the last session of the committee, of disturbed conditions prior to the uprising of April last.

At one point he said in part:

"I learned that Ed Boyce, president of the Western Federation of Miners, was in that county ten days before the explosion of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill, and at that time he inaugurated or perfected this conspiracy by choosing 20 men from the different organizations in that county and swearing them.

"These 20 men chose one each and swore him, and the 40 each chose a man and swore him, and the 80 each chose a man and swore him. In that way there were at least 160 men in this conspiracy to do this thing sworn to secrecy."

The governor said: "I learned these facts from James R. Sovereign, through a mutual friend."

The name of the mutual friend, the governor finally gave as A. B. Campbell.

PLENTY OF IT.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating of it." If any city or town in the Union has sufficient proof on the following subject it is East Liverpool. Genuine merit is finding its reward in the hearty endorsement of local citizens. When people right here at home, friends and neighbors of our readers, give a statement like the following for publication, it is proof convincing for the most skeptical. Read this testimony:

Mr. Thomas Laughlin, of 172 Sophia street, engineer, says: "I caught cold and neglected it. It settled in my back and kidneys, forced me to quit work and almost cost me my life. I could not move without suffering, and often could neither sit, stand or lie for pain. The secretions of the kidneys went wrong and distressed, and annoyed me both night and day. I took medicines for two years, but did not get well. When I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. Noticing some improvement by the time I had taken the first half of the box, I continued until I took four boxes and my back was all right, as well as the urinary trouble. I will substantiate my statement of Doan's Kidney Pills if any one will come to my house to investigate for themselves. My wife had some backache also; she took Doan's Kidney Pills and was cured."

WEISEND.

If Mr. J. Weisend was in earnest in his candidacy, and in his effort to reach the mayor's chair, then must he be the worst disgusted politician ever seeking the ballots of his party. And Weisend bears the record of being a good and square citizen.

OUR COUNCIL.

We expect much of this body during the next two years. The News Review believes that the members thereof will act in harmony with the mayor and marshal in the enforcement of existing laws and in the preservation of good order.

SWELLED HEAD.

It is an awful disease, and much to be dreaded by men possessed of good common sense. When you appreciate the fact that an attack is coming upon you, and you commence to believe that you are the "whole menagerie," and that you possess all the knowledge and wisdom that has been issued to men, get a compress for your cranium, think of some of the petty little meannesses you have been guilty of, climb off your stilts and stand on terra firma.

BAD BOYS.

The conduct of the boys in front of the News Review office was abominable last night, and on several occasions it seemed that some of the number would crash through the plate glass windows. Officers were called by phone, promised to respond, and signally failed to pay any attention to their promise. It is hoped that the marshal-elect, T. V. Thompson, will be chief of police in reality, and not a mere figure head.

COOK.

In the words of Shakespeare, Mr. Edward Cook's "goose was thoroughly cooked." Ed. assured the writer that he was confident of election, and even mapped out his plan of procedure when seated in a councilmanic chair. It was cruel to thus treat you, Edward, and you have our heartfelt sympathy in your hours of humiliation. Some of those yellow circulars, handed around by you and your "twin," the would-be artist, might have saved you. Hey, Edward?

NOT THE "RIGHT BOWER."

He was the Republican nominee for burgess of East Palestine. The directory says he is a saloonkeeper. East Palestine is a Republican town. Bower was apparently safe to win; but it seems that many Republican voters are not backers of the liquor league, and this "Bower" did not capture the trick. Moral: Divorce the liquor league from politics. A voter can be a good and true Republican, and still have a good, hearty, honest hatred of the accursed rum traffic, in all its forms and disguises.

LOUDER THAN WORDS.

Many grand citizens of East Liverpool voted against W. C. Davidson and T. V. Thompson on account of the firm belief that these nominees of the Republican party were in league with the liquor league and saloon element, and could be controlled thereby. The surest way in all the world to successfully refute this is by the actions of these officers during the next two years. The writer believes that these two men will aim to do their sworn duty. Time will tell the story. Actions speak louder than words.

HEADS OF THE TICKET.

The Republican party has highly honored W. C. Davidson and T. V. Thompson. Will the men thus honored do honor to the city of East Liverpool and her citizens? The News Review earnestly hopes that they will prove to be the best executive officers ever elected by this municipality. They can make or unmake themselves during the next two years. Good and clean government and the enforcement of law and order means a second and possibly a third term, while failure means failure indeed.

OUR BULLETINS.

They found general favor last night, and there was an immense crowd of orderly citizens in attendance, a class of men who are a credit to any city. The only annoyance was caused by a crowd of young hoodlums, youngsters whom the law declares should be at their homes at the hour we designate, and would have been had the marshal and his roundsmen paid any attention to their duty or promises. Intense interest was manifested respecting the head of the ticket, and the result seemed to meet with general favor.

The Road to Convalescence.

A woman will be in bed all morning and go to a whist party in the afternoon. She will be genuinely sick all day and go like a martyr to a card party at night. The plea that her absence might inconvenience her hostess is considered sufficient excuse. A man with an ache goes to bed and roars. It would be interesting to learn which is the shorter route to recovery.—Atchison Globe.

One Fault.

Miss Crochet (after an attack upon the piano)—How do you like that? It is a song without words.

Fogg—It would be absolutely perfect but for one thing.

Miss Crochet—What's that, pray?

Fogg—If it was also without music.—Boston Transcript.

A Hint.

"No," she replied, and then she added fervently, "but, thank heaven, I never learned to sew!"—Chicago Post.

TURNED HIM DOWN HARD

WELLSVILLE ALSO DEMOCRATIC

Dennis Being Re-elected—Salem and Lisbon Went Republican by Big Majorities.

ST. CLAIR WENT REPUBLICAN.

East Palestine, April 3.—(Special.)—H. E. Bower, the saloonist who flouted his nomination for mayor on the Republican ticket in the faces of the local option majority of East Palestine, adding this insult to the injury they smarted under in his successful appeal to the circuit court against Mayor Lyon's sentence upon him for delivering liquor in the village from his saloon across the village line, met a stunning rebuke at the polls yesterday. He was the only Republican on the ticket who was defeated. Adolph Mascher, the Democratic nominee, a village business man, polled 275 votes to 266 for Bower. At the Republican primaries Bower got 193 to 158 for Mayor Lyon, whom he defeated for renomination. All the rest of the Republican ticket received comfortable majorities yesterday. There was a very large vote out.

DENNIS RE-ELECTED.

Wellsville, April 3.—(Special.)—Mayor Dennis, Democrat, was re-elected yesterday. He had 708 to 527 for J. C. Catlett, Republican. The balance of the Republican ticket won. The liquor issue is said to have figured largely in the mayor fight.

HUXLEY AGAIN.

Salem Re-Elects Its Republican Mayor and the Whole City Ticket.

Salem, April 3.—(Special.)—Mayor Paul Huxley, Republican, was re-elected yesterday by 1,076 votes to 691 for John Scott, Democratic nominee. For solicitor, Metzgar, Republican, had 944, A. W. Taylor 809. The entire Republican ticket won.

LISBON'S VOTE.

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special.)—Geo. T. Ferrall, Republican candidate for mayor, was elected by 490 to 186 for L. G. Caskie, Democrat.

The proposal to issue $5,000 of water works bonds carried by 415 to 189.

IN ST. CLAIR TOWNSHIP

Republicans and Democrats Won Half the Offices and One Tied As Usual.

It's a cold day when St. Clair township cannot turn up morning after election with a tie vote for some office. Every election held there since November has had a tie. The result yesterday was: Township clerk, J. J. Ansley, R., 110; Mehaffey, D., 106; township trustee, Clapsaddle, D., 125; Miller, R., 92; treasurer, Huston, R., 108; Wright, D., 104; assessor, Orr, D., 125; Saint, R., 92; constable, Faulk, R., 106; Smith, D., 106.

How Far Apart Did They Live?

"I was at the capitol one day," said a Boston lawyer, "in attendance upon a committee having in charge a bill in which my clients are interested. On the long, leather covered settee near me two southern members were smoking and conversing. The following words were jotted down by me verbatim:

"'Majah, I was down among youh people last summer, and I wanted to find Gen'al Blood's plantation, but I got off my road. Where does he live from youh place, majah?'

"'Why, colon'l, he lives near me, a right smart piece south on the river.'

"'Then that must be the reason I missed it. I went too far around the river bend.'

"Now, these gentlemen understood each other beyond a doubt. But what I want to know is, how many miles was it from the major's plantation to the general's? And for the life of me I can't solve the question. It haunted me so that I stumbled two or three times when subsequently making my argument before the committee, of which these two members formed a part."—Washington Star.

Sapphires Not All Blue.

"It is commonly believed that the sapphire is known only as a gem of a rich velvety blue in color," observed an experienced dealer in precious stones to the writer the other day. "As a matter of fact, the sapphire occurs in various hues. In Ceylon, for instance, where the finest specimens of this gem are found, it ranges from the soft velvety blue to the peacock blue, graduated in the latter to an almost faultless white. It also occurs in whites, greens and yellows, the latter shade being known as the oriental topaz and the green the oriental emerald.

"The white sapphires are often found clouded or streaked with blue, so that many specimens are cut which are white when looked at transversely, but having a bit of fine blue tint on the under point. Then there is the red sapphire, or Ceylon ruby. It is valued as highly as the finest Burmese rubies. Those most highly prized are of rich pigeon blood or rose red color.

"Some very fine sapphires have been found in Montana during the past ten years. The American gems are light blue, blue green, green and pink, but the deep blue and red stones, which are chiefly in demand as jewels, have so far never been discovered in any part of this country."—Washington Star.

The Rooster Was Game.

A Rockland young man is the owner of a smart rooster and has long entertained suspicion that the bird might have inherited gamy characteristics from some long forgotten ancestor. To apply this theory in an actual test he went home the other night, surreptitiously conveyed the parlor mirror into the hen pen and held it before the gaze of the wondering rooster.

The young man was not kept long in suspense as to the bird's fighting qualities. After a brief, incredulous glance at the proud reflection in the glass the rooster descended upon the object with spurs set and wrath gleaming from each beadlike eye. There were a crash, a smash and a clatter, and when the dust and feathers cleared away the young sportsman stood, a dismayed spectator, in the center of a pile of ruins formed of broken mirror, slats and pulverized plate glass.

He is now satisfied with the rooster, but how he squared himself about the broken mirror is not known.—Bangor Whig and Courier.

"I should think not," replied Cumso. "But see how the jokers have changed George Washington's cherry tree into a chestnut."—Harper's Bazar.

THE NEW TELEPHONES.

INTENDING USERS SHOULD NOTIFY THE COMPANY.

At Once And So Assist in Prompt Service By the Columbiana County Company.

Salem, O., April 2, 1900.

Editor News Review, East Liverpool, O.

Dear Sir—Please say to the patrons of your paper and the citizens in general that it is the desire of the Columbiana County Telephone company that all who contemplate using the new telephone make their wants known as soon as possible, so that we may know what to prepare for and have them promptly served, as it is impossible for the company to put phones in promptly after they have finished their general construction and called their men away to other places. People are apt to think that it is an easy matter for the company to put in a phone most any day when the order is once given, but in fact this is not true. It must be remembered that we are putting in hundreds of phones all over the county, and that we try to finish one town as nearly as we can before going to another, and it is unreasonable to subscribe for a telephone the next day after our men have left town and demand that it be put in that day; hence this request. We shall try and serve all patrons promptly with a better service than they have ever had, and at a lower price than they have ever paid or can ever expect to have, if they will notify us in time.

Yours respectfully,
S. C. THAYER,
President the Columbiana County Telephone Company.

Easy to Beat Hotels.

"Hotel men give out that they warn each other by circulars about deadbeats," said the slick looking man with the high hat, "but don't you let that stop you if you want to live high for a week. Few men like to publish the fact that they have been done up. It's the easiest thing in the world to beat a first class hotel. All you want is a good suit of clothes and plenty of cheek. A grip with a few shirts and collars is as good as a trunk.

"You drive up in style; you register to get the best room in the house; you bulldoze the clerks and threaten the servants. A checkbook is a good thing to show, but you pay for nothing. You talk in a loud voice, you make plenty of kicks, and you order the best wines for dinner. Lands, but the whole staff of the house will fall over each other to make it pleasant for you! You don't pay the first week's bill. On the contrary, you are indignant and demand an apology. When the second week is due, your drafts have not come.

"You will be worked out of the house, but with gentleness and apologies. They don't want a row, and they don't want notoriety. You'll be forgiven if you'll only go, and if you take up your quarters for the next two weeks right across the street no one from the hotel will give you away. When a man beats us, we like to see him beat our neighbor, you know. It's nice and genteel work, with no kicks or hard times, and there is always room for one more in the profession."—Detroit Journal.

Food Plants.

A wonderful reserve fund for the human appetite is to be found in the vegetable diet of the Klamath Indians. A novel variety of food, forming a menu unknown to the civilized, is offered in the pulp of the great yellow water lily, which is converted into a farinaceous food; in the weed known as goosefoot, which bears a black seed that is ground up for loaves and cakes, and in the arrowhead, which in the fall develops a starchy white tuber at the end of the roots.

New stripe worsed suits, Joseph Bros.' received this week are the handsomest line you will see worn for the coming season.

The drill will likely be given in either Columbian or Rock Spring parks, although the idea of using the streets has been discussed Companies from surrounding towns in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania are expected to be here, and also from Pittsburg, Youngstown and Cleveland.

WILLIAM C. DAVIDSON.

The Mayor-Elect is Distinctively a Home Man and Was Born and Raised Here.

William C. Davidson, who was elected mayor of East Liverpool yesterday by the largest majority ever given a candidate for that office, is distinctively a home man. He is 38 years of age and was born in this city October 16, 1861, in a little brick house which stood on a lot directly opposite from where the Cleveland & Pittsburg passenger station now stands. He is a son of the late A. M. Davidson, who, before his death was for years one of the most prominent business men of the city. The mayor-elect has spent his whole life in this city, and this was his first break into politics. He is known to almost every person in the city and is very popular with all classes of people.

When seen this morning he stated that he would follow the usual custom in regard to taking his seat as mayor of the city. He remarked that he had taken no action in regard to the police appointments and didn't know anything about a caucus, as being elected mayor was a new thing to him. He remarked, however, that he expected to follow the usual custom in regard to the matter.

Boiled Salt Meats.

The indigestible properties of boiled ham, corned beef and other salt meats may, according to Mrs. Parloa, the cooking expert, be eliminated if the meat is sufficiently boiled. The salt toughens the fibers, and it takes persistent boiling to overcome this. The time allowed for a ten pound piece is five hours, but as the pieces are apt to be thick rather than long one of half this weight would need about the same amount of time. The meat should be partly cooled in the water in which it is boiled.

DIME NOVEL DETECTIVE.

ARCHIE WALSH WAS ARRESTED IN CLEVELAND.

Young Walsh is a son of J. C. Walsh, of Sixth street. He told a number of his young friends a few days ago that he intended to take a trip soon, but did not say where he intended to go. Walsh left for Cleveland last night, and is expected home with the boy this evening

The following appeared in a Cleveland paper this morning:

"A youthful would-be imitator of the great Sherlock Holmes came to grief at the hands of the police last evening, in the person of Archie Walsh, 16 years old, of East Liverpool, O., who was arrested on the charge of being a suspicious person, by Patrolmen Bruder and Fitzgerald.

"The officers found Walsh loitering in the hall of the Mohawk building, and, after questioning him decided to take him to the police station. He gave his name and said his home is in East Liverpool. He said that he left home about three weeks ago.

"The police say that they have information in their possession which leads them to believe that the boy stole considerable money from his father and left home. A letter found in his possession was addressed to a detective agency in Chicago. In it Walsh said he would like to be engaged to do work. He told them that he could dye his hair any color wanted, could disguise himself in any manner in two minutes, and, in fact, was a veritable sleuth. In the letter he told them his real name, but cautioned them to address all letters to him as 'Jack Diamond,' care of the American house.

"The police say that since he has been in the city he has spent $114 for new clothes, a diamond ring, a watch and chain and a revolver. He is a bright appearing boy, and has an uncle living on St. Clair street At the central police station he registered as living at the American house, and gave his occupation as that of waiter. The police are holding him until his father can be communicated with."

MAYOR BOUGH

Who Was Defeated Yesterday Has Been in Politics for Several Years.

Mayor Bough, who was defeated yesterday, has been in politics for several years, and has made the race for mayor four times. The defeat yesterday was the greatest ever administered to him. In 1894 he was a candidate against Gilbert and was defeated by 180 votes, the total being Gilbert 825, Bough 645. In 1896 he was again a candidate against Gilbert and this time he was defeated by 93 votes, Gilbert receiving 1,002, while he got 909. In 1898 he was again a candidate against Gilbert, and this time he was successful in defeating Gilbert 237 votes, Bough receiving 1,538, while Gilbert received 1,301.

The mayor took the defeat of yesterday with a good spirit, and when asked in regard to the matter stated that he certainly had many warm friends in the city and he was proud of his vote. He also stated that he would retire from office next Tuesday evening, when he would present his monthly and annual reports to council.

A Few Things of Interest in Regard to the Election Held Yesterday.

Mayor Bough will retire from office next Tuesday evening, when Mayor-elect Davidson will be sworn in.

It is asserted that the Davidson vote made its appearance in the afternoon. It arrived on time.

A prominent boss potter this morning remarked that he thought it was a shame that there was 162 Democrats inthe city.

A large flag in the Diamond was run up this morning in honor of the occasion and the pump was started.

Yesterday afternoon a fellow named Hagerty asked to vote at the first precinct of the Third ward. George H. Owen asked him if he had been here a year and wanted him to take oath to it. He refused and Owen asked him if he would affirm. He replied "I am no farmer, I am a bricklayer." He went out without voting.

The interest will now center on the primary to be held in Stark county next Saturday.

There was not an election day arrest.

The second precinct of the Fourth ward, as usual, had some excitement. A drunken individual tried to run the place. An officer was called, but he escaped.

It was decidedly a wet day.

Cook can be listed among the "also ran."

Barnum's Excuse.

P. T. Barnum's propensity for practical joking began early to assert itself. Once a man was on trial in a local court for a small misdemeanor. Learning that he had no money to hire a lawyer, Barnum offered to conduct his defense. With great solemnity he made a lengthy plea in which he virtually accused his client of being guilty of half the crimes on the calendar, ending with a recommendation to the mercy of the court on the ground of unsound mind.

The man, though escaping with a merely nominal sentence, was furious at the trick that had been played on him. He was finally appeased by Barnum's explanation that he had prepared a defense for two different clients and had in his case delivered the wrong plea.—Maitland Leroy Osborne in National Magazine.

Nassau's Big Tree.

In Nassau, the capital city of the Bahama islands, they say "the tree in the public square"—not the trees. Now the public square of Nassau is quite as large as that of most cities of the size, but there is only one tree in it, and that tree literally fills the square and spreads its shade over all the public buildings in the neighborhood. For it is the largest tree in the world at its base, although it is hardly taller than a three story house. It is variously known as a ceiba or a silk cotton tree, but the people of the low islands of the West Indies call it the hurricane tree; for no matter how hard the wind blows it cannot disturb the mighty, buttressed trunk of the ceiba.

Its trunk throws out great curving, windlike braces, some of them 20 feet wide and nearly as high. These extend into the ground on all sides and brace the tree against all attack, while the great branches spread a thick shade overhead. In the tropic sunshine of midsummer, hundreds, even thousands, of people may gather in the cool of its shadow. No one knows how old the great tree is, but it must have been growing hundreds, if not thousands, of years. A very old picture in the library at Nassau shows the tree as big as it is at present, and even the oldest negro in the island cannot remember when it was a bit smaller.—Washington Post.

Tom Corwin's Ready Wit.

Governor John Brough was once matched against Corwin and in his speech said:

"Gentlemen, my honored opponent himself, while he preaches advocacy of home industry, has a carriage at home which he got in England; had it shipped across the water to him. How is that for supporting home industry and labor?"

When Corwin came to the stand, he made a great show of embarrassment. He stammered and began slowly:

"Well, gentlemen, you have heard what my friend Mr. Brough has to say about my carriage. I plead guilty to the charge, and I have only two things to say in my defense. The first is that the carriage came to me from an English ancestor as an heirloom, and I had to take it. Again, I have not used it for seven years, and it has been standing in my back yard all that time, and the chickens have converted it into a roost. Now, gentlemen," with a steady look at Brough, "I have nothing further to say in my defense, but I would like to know how Brough knows anything about my carriage if he has not been visiting my henroost!" —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Mile a Minute Down the Alps.

The spot in the Swiss Alps that attracts the winter sportsmen of Europe is the Cresta run, at St. Moritz, which is just one mile in length. The tobogganing season here begins about the middle of November, when the first snow falls. The condition of the run is not left to chance, but the slide is prepared under the direction of a committee. Swiss toboggans in contrast to the Canadian ones, made entirely of wood, are raised on runners shod with iron or steel. The expert rider lies prone upon the toboggan, head foremost, both hands grasping the framework at the sides and both feet employed in steering. Iron spikes are secured to the toes of the boots, and by trailing one or the other foot along the ground the big sled may be guided. But as this fashion of steering tends to diminish the speed the most skilled [illegible] as possible [illegible] upon shifting the position. Though the [illegible] length, the whole distance may be covered in 70 seconds. At the steepest point a mile a minute is made.

An Unwelcome Visitor.

While camped in the Wallapai mountains recently there came to my camp from off the Santa Fe Pacific an English overland tourist, and, after passing the usual salutations and greetings, the stranger proposed to join the desert express train of burros and try his luck prospecting. The first camp was made at Maggie Springs, where stood an old miner's cabin. In the morning he proposed to help cook breakfast and built a rousing fire in the old fireplace of the cabin and started to fry the bacon. All at once a startled expression came from the embryo cook, and, turning quickly, I discovered a large king snake sizzling in the frying pan. The chimney getting hot had dislodged his snakeship, and down he came into the hot grease.

STOP HERESY HUNTING

Rev. Dr. Hillis' Advice to the Presbyterian Church.

USE THAT TIME SAVING SOULS.

Does Not Believe In Foreordination—Refuses to Preach Presbyterianism With That In the Creed—Asked to Be Demitted From the Ministry.

CHICAGO, April 3.—The resignation of Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, from the Chicago presbytery, and the request that he be allowed to demit from the Presbyterian church, was placed before the annual meeting of the Chicago presbytery No action will be taken on the matter for two weeks, the committee to which Dr. Hillis' letter of resignation was referred for consideration requesting that much time on account of the many important interests involved, and being unwilling to take hasty action on a matter so important to the Presbyterian church.

Dr. Hillis' resignation was in the form of a letter to Dr. W. C. Gray, editor of The Interior, and a personal friend of the Brooklyn pastor, and when the aged divine stepped upon the platform to present the letter to the Chicago presbytery, the auditorium of Olivet Memorial church, in which the meeting was held, was crowded to the doors, nearly every Presbyterian minister in Chicago being present.

Rev. Dr. Hillis said in part:

I regret exceedingly that my former instructors have thought one of their students lacking in courtesy and respect for those to whom I am confessedly under obligation,

through the lecture room and library. I can but think, however, that the scope, content and drift of my sermon were entirely misapprehended. I have long felt that our easy going, pleasure loving generation is in danger of losing its moral stamina, and the sturdy fidelity of conviction that was the glory of our puritan ancestors. Having often plied men with motives of self interest, reason and love, in the sermon on the automatic judgment seat in man, I appealed to the sense of justice and righteousness.

Failing to find a sufficient rational basis for penalty and alarm in the old Calvinistic theology, I did find a basis for fearing the penalties of transgression in reason and memory, in judgment and conscience. The sermon sounds the note of warning and alarm. It capitalizes righteousness and not pleasure as the keynote of character. By every possible motive I urged men to turn from their transgressions lest they fall under the penalties of the automatic judgment seat in man as well as the condemnation of God. In passing I spoke of the fragmentary theories of Dante, of Michael Angelo, of Jonathan Edwards and our confession of faith.

Hitherto I have encouraged myself in the hope and belief that nine-tenths of our members and most of our pastors rejected this chapter in the confession. In uniting with the presbytery I subscribed to the confession "as containing the system of doctrine," a phrase unfortunately omitted in my sermon of last Sunday.

It now seems that this qualification "as containing the system of doctrine" does not permit one to deny this doctrine of reprobation. One of my former professors says I have "coldly, clearly and insolently denounced the doctrines of the faith," and, therefore, "can not consistently remain in the church." For years, in common with many other preachers, I have been apologizing for our creed, and saying that while our confession of faith says "that some men and angels are foreordained to everlasting death," that nobody believed it.

Nevertheless, during these years, I have been disturbed by the thought that nothing lowers the moral sense of the community like the keeping on statute books laws that are daily disobeyed and laughed at. And what shall be said of the injury to our children and youth of preserving intact a creed that is accepted by clerical instructors one day and denied by our ministers the next? During the past years I labored in season and out of season with voice and pen to secure a revision of the confession that we might be clear before the world. But it now seems that some teachers in our theological seminaries hold to the doctrine of reprobation, teach it, love it, count it an integral part of our system and urge that if I can not accept it, I must withdraw from the church.

In fulfilling their request, I now discern that I have for years been in a false position, and desire to set myself right.

The views I now hold and teach I have held and taught during my pastorates of the First Presbyterian church, at Evanston, and the Central church, of Chicago. What little light I have had has not been under a bushel. I have not believed one thing secretly and taught another openly. Holding back nothing, I have tried to give the light as the light has gone forth from God's word to me. But I now see that I have grieved and disturbed my brethren. The happiness and welfare of no one man should weigh for a moment against the welfare of all. As I am no longer a Calvinist in the old sense of the term, and could not today accept the unrevised confession of faith, I have decided to demit my ministry in the Presbyterian church and, beginning anew, to unite with some other body on the statement of my present belief.

In going out from you, less some misunderstand my action, I wish to reaffirm my faith in what is called the great fundamental principles of Christianity. As never before I believe in God the Father, Maker of Heaven and Earth, and in His loving providence, in His all-helpful, all-comforting, all-guiding and regenerating spirit; in Jesus Christ, the world's Savior and Redeemer, and our way and truth and life; in man made in the image of God, and despite his sinfulness and ignorance he is sincerely and truthfully invited to come into the likeness to his father. I believe that what Christ was and did, and suffered for a few men through three and thirty years, God is, and does and suffers for all men, in all worlds through all ages. If the new scholarship has destroyed my old view of the Bible, as never before I believe the Bible to be the word of God, a light to my feet and a lamp to my path. After years of mental conflict and doubt, I have bought these faiths at a great price.

Nothing can wrest them from me. For me the principles of evangelical Christianity seem as firmly fixed as mountains and stars. So far, also, from loving the Christian church and the Christian ministry less, these views have strengthened my love until it has become an all-consuming passion. There are hours when I look out upon the multitudes going stumbling, blundering, weeping, falling, sinning and dying, when it seems to me I would die a thousand deaths to be permitted to give a cup of cold water only to one of Christ's little ones, or light one beacon fire to guide the pilgrim host struggling through the desert. And when I think of the poor in our tenement houses, of the prodigal sons and daughters in the streets of our great cities, upon men whose business it is to degrade their fellows, I see that what I once hoped to do for my fellows through schemes of social reform and philanthropy, can only be done by the influence of Jesus Christ, and His spirit manifested in His disciples who bear the burdens and sorrows of the people. For there is no dynamic in reform save the cross of Jesus Christ.

Of late, I have felt that the church was approaching a great crisis and that while we have been discussing the nature of inspiration and petty critical problems, the great world, weary and broken hearted and choked with fog and mist, have been asking whether or not there is a personal God; and while we have been trying each other for heresy, the multitudes have been turning away from the threshold of the Christian church to wander in the darkness and storm.

At the conclusion of the reading of the letter a motion to refer it to a committee of three for consideration was adopted, and Dr. J. G. K. McClure, president of Lake Forest university; Dr. William R. Notman, of the Fourth church, and Dr. W. J. Chichester, of the First church, were named, Dr. Herrick Johnson, president of McCormick Theological seminary, who had been named, withdrawing on the ground that he had already expressed his opinion in favor of the acceptance of Dr. Hillis' resignation. The committee spent some time in discussing the letter, and finally decided to ask for two weeks' time in which to consider the matter before making any recommendation to the presbytery, and the request was granted by a unanimous vote.

Although none of the members of the committee would express an opinion as to the probable recommendation to be made, many of the ministers present stated they did not favor allowing Dr. Hillis to demit, as his opinions on certain Presbyterian doctrines were not confined to himself and that, therefore, the erasure of his name from the rolls of the Presbyterian church would be opposed. Such action, they stated, would be regarded in a way as favorable to Dr. Hillis, as it would allow him to become a preacher of the Congregationrl church without doctrinal examination.

EXISTENCE OF WAR FORMALLY RECOGNIZED.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Secretary Root stated that Major George O. Kirkman, Forty-ninth volunteer infantry, is no longer in the service of the United States, by the approval of General Otis. The approval of the president is unnecessary. Kirkman was accused of being drunk on the transport Liverpool, on the voyage from San Francisco to Manila. Private advices also charged him with affronting Archbishop Chapelle, who was one of the passengers.

The construction given by the war department to General Otis' action in this case commits the department, it is believed, to a formal recognition of the existence of war in the Philippines. Article 106 of the articles of war expressly provides that the sentence of dismissal, in the case of an officer, shall not be carried out "in time of peace," except on the approval of the president of the United States.

20,000 Mineworkeas Strike.

PITTSBURG, April 3.—Twenty thousand mineworkers struck in the Pittsburg district, principall through misnnderstanding over the weight standard.

BOTH PARTIES GAINED.

Republicans' Increases Apparently Largest In Ohio.

DEMOCRATS WERE INDIFFERENT.

Then It Is Believed the Republicans Succeeded In Healing More of Factional Differences Than Did the Democrats. Results In Some Places.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—A summary of the results of tha municipal and township elections in Ohio indicate more Republican than Democratic gains, but no special cause for it is assigned, except that the Republican factions that have been fighting for years have evidently been getting together, and that the Democrats have shown more indifference than usual. This applies especially to the larger cities, but there have been Republican gains, according to the returns from rural districts and interior towns, that are not thus accounted for.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—The Republicans scored a success over the fusionists at the election here for all the city offices. They also have all members of the new board of public service for three years, which controls everything except the police and fire departments The board of legislation stands, 24 Republicans and 7 Democrats, and the board of education 24 Republicans and 4 Democrats.

Colonel Julius Fleischman, a millionaire Hebrew, is a very close friend to Senator Hanna, who is said to have requested the young man to make the race. He was elected by over 8,500 plurality over State Senator Alfred M. Cohen, the fusion candidate, together with the full Republican city ticket. There were six arrests for illegal voting.

COLUMBUS, April 3.—Rev. Washington Gladden, the eminent congregational clergyman, was elected to the city council, from the Seventh ward, defeating C. E. Miles, Republican, by 76 votes, out of a total of 1,800 cast. Dr. Gladden ran as an Independent candidate, though indorsed by the Democrats at their caucus.

NEWARK, O., April 3.—Newark went Democratic, the Democrats electing the whole city ticket, seven of the eight councilmen and three members of the board of education. For mayor Herbert Atherton, Dem., had 305 plurality.

TOLEDO, O., April 3.—The Republican city ticket was elected by about 2,000, but the Democratic gains in the council will probably give its control to that party. James Melvin is elected to the non-partisan school board, and the other member elected with him is probably John W. Dowd.

COLUMBUS, April 3.—Complete returns of election show that N. W. Dick, Dem., has been elected police judge over M. B. Darnhart, Rep., by 508 votes. The total vote was 22,140. Last spring the Republicans elected a mayor by about 1,500. The council stands 10 Republicans, 7 Democrats and 2 Independents. The proposition to issue $350,000 bonds for a market house was defeated. The franchise granted to the Federal Gas company was ratified.

DAYTON, O., April 3.—The election here, with a comparatively light vote, was a walkover for J. R. Lindmuth, Democratic candidate for mayor, by a majority of about 3,000.

WOOSTER, O., April 3.—The Democrats elect four members of the council; Republicans, one. The township is Democratic by 75 majority. There is no political change of officials.

MANSFIELD, O., April 3.—The Democrats here elected a waterworks trustee and justice of the peace. The council is Democratic and the school board, which has been Republican for years, is a tie.

MASSILLON, O., April 3.—The Republican mayor was elected by a large majority. The council is a tie, a gain of one for the Democrats. The other municipal officers broke even.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 3.—The Republicans carried this city, electing Frank Brown mayor by a majority of about 1,000; C. J. Mathew, solicitor, and W. A. Beecher, trustee of waterworks, completely revolutionizing the municipal administration, which for the past four years has been Democratic. The council continues Republican by 2 majority, as does the board of education.

HAMILTON, O., April 3.—The Democrats elected the entire city ticket by a majority of about 900, a falling off of about 100.

ZANESVILLE, O., April 3.—The result of this city is mixed. The Republicans elect the street commissioner and constables, while the Democrats get the water works trustee, cemetery trustee and justice.

CANTON, O., April 3.—The Republicans elected their entire city ticket by majorities ranging from 800 to 1,200. The big pluralities were on members of the school board, in which the women participated. The Republicans elected four out of seven councilmen. The Republicans get control of the school board, which last year was unanimously Democratic.

INFERNAL MACHINE SENT TO GEO. B. COX.

Failed to Explode, Owing to Rain Having Wet the Matches—He Had Heard of a Plot.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—An attempt was made to blow up George B. Cox, the Republican boss, at his home in Clifton.

The servant found a small wooden box on the porch and handed it to Mrs. Cox. She opened the sliding lid, which revealed a stick of carefully arranged dynamite.

The matches had failed to ignite on account of being damp, it having rained during the early morning.

Cox, who had previously been informed of a plot against him, took the box to the police.

WEBSTER DAVIS RESIGNS HIS SECRETARYSHIP.

Could Better Lecture In Behalf of the Boers While a Private Citizen Than as a Public Official.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The formal resignation of Webster Davis as assistant secretary of the interior was sent to the president through his private secretary. At the White House no statement was obtainable concerning the resignation other than the fact that it had been received, and the officials declined to say whether it would be accepted.

Mr. Davis decided to resign because of the acceptance of an invitation to deliver a lecture on the South African war, and he felt that as an official he could not express his views with such freedom as he could as a private citizen. The invitation was extended by non-partisan citizens of Washington and was not inspired in any way by persons directly connected with Boer interests.

Mr. Davis said in part:

"It is purely a matter of sympathy on my part. I went to South Africa unprejudiced, visited both armies, saw much of the British soldiers and people, and also much of the Boers. After seeing what I did, I made up my mind that the cause of the Boers was just.

"When I entered the train at Pretoria, on my return home, fully 2,000 men and women, mostly women, whose husbands and fathers and sons were at the front, gathered at the station to bid me goodby, and as the tears rolled down many of thir faces, they made the last request of me that I do everything within my power upon my return home to let the American people know of their exact condition; to let them know how they had been abused and outrageously misrepresented by the English.

"The English correspondents have no trouble in getting their dispatches over the cable lines, as they are controlled absolutely by the British, while it is impossible for information regarding the situation from the Boers' standpoint to reach the American people. If I did not, as a free American, decide to listen to their appeals, my conscience would burn and the faces of those suffering people, as brave and as noble as God ever let live in any land, would haunt me as long as I live.

"I am, therefore, determined to do everything in my humble way to assist them. Their cause is just and in God is their trust, and in the light of the past history of the American people who went through the same struggle, I believe the Boers will win."

Mr. Davis was asked what course he would have the people of this country pursue in order to assist the Boers. He replied: "Do anything and everything within their power, and let Great Britain and the world know that the sympathies of the American people are not with Great Britain, but with the Boers and in the interests of humanity and civilization.

"We should let the world know that such an unholy war should stop, and stop at once."

Dr. Barbarin Dead.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Dr. Francis St. Clair Barbarin, for 27 years the curator of the Corcoran art gallery here, died at his home in Georgetown. He was born in Newport, R. I., 67 years ago.

Two Officers Escaped.

LOURENZO MARQUEZ, April 3.—Captain Haldane and Lieutenant LeMesurier, two British officers, arrived here from Pretoria, where they effected their escape.

FINAL DEBATE IS ON.

Porto Ricon Bill Comes to Vote This Afternoon.

THE HOUR SET IS 4 O'CLOCK.

Efforts Will Be Made, However, to Extend the Time, So as to Allow More Speechmaking—Senator Spooner a Brilliant Participant.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The final vote on the Porto Ricon tariff and government bill will be taken late this afternoon. It is arranged for 4 o'clock, but an effort will be made to extend the time for debate beyond that hour.

The speeches were good and the running debate bright and unusually lively, the speech of Mr. Spooner, of Wisconsin, particularly, the chamber seeming to scintillate with sparks, as he crossed augmentative swords with some of the best debaters on the Democratic side. His address, if so it could be called, was devoted almost wholly to a discussion of the constitutional questions involved in the pending bill.

Mr. Bate (Dem., Tenn.) opened the discussion with a carefully prepared speech in opposition to the bill. He was followed by Mr. Cullom (Rep., Ills.) in a vigorous speech supporting the measure. Then came Mr. Depew (Rep., N. Y.), a member of the committee which framed the bill, who made an eloquent and forceful defense of the measure. Mr. Spooner, who spoke next, was followed by Mr. Perkins (Rep., Cal.), also a member of the committee on Porto Rico, who presented a strong argument for the bill. The closing speech was delivered by Mr. Simon (Rep., Or.), who, in criticizing the measure, entered into a brief discussion of the political effects of its passage:

MAY REDUCE WAR TAX.

Such Action Foreshadowed In Resolution Introduced In the House by Payne.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—A possible reduction of the war taxes was foreshadowed in a resolution adopted by the house calling upon the secretary of the treasury for information as to the probable surplus existing revenue laws would create during this and the coming fiscal year.

Under suspension of the rules bills were passed to open to settlement 418,000 acres in the Fort Hall Indian reservation and 2,500,000 acres in Oklahoma by ratifying the agreement with the Bannock and Shoshone Indians and the Kiowa, Commanche and Apaches; to divide the northern judicial district of New York into two districts and to appropriate $100,000 for a military post at Sheridan, Wy.

NEW YORK, April 3.—The stock market made a strong opening Monday on large buying orders, which had accumulated in commission houses over Sunday and in response to the continued demand for London account. The influence of Saturday's favorable bank statement was still felt and the room traders were inclined to the bull side. The strength of the market was not maintained.

Quite a number of usually inactive railroads were strong, notably the Lake Erie and Western stocks, the preferred stock jumping 15½ points, to par, and the common rising an extreme 4½. The fall in Sugar was accompanied by reports of new cuts in the price of coffee, the war in the coffee trade being waged by the same rival interests as that in the sugar trade. The weakness in the iron stocks seemed to be due to disappointment on the part of speculators over the showing of earnings made by the Federal Steel company. The drop in Federal Steel from the early high point was 4⅜ and in Steel and Wire over 3 points. Other stocks in the group were less actively traded in, but all showed weakness.

Money was easy, though not much effect was felt from the disbursement of quarterly interest and dividend payments. Sterling exchange continued its upward course, and the question is now arising whether the increase in the circulating medium by the operation of the law of March 14 may not result in the sending of gold abroad by relieving the need for it in circulation here. The process of taking out new circulation, which had come to a pause, is reported from Washington to have received a fresh impetus, and the sub-treasury in New York is again paying out large amounts for premiums on converted bonds.

The bond market was active Monday, Wabash debenture Bs being absorbed on a large scale. Prices generally are higher. Total sales, par value, $3,925,000.

United States refunding 2s, when issued, declined ½ and the 2s and old 4s ¼ in the bid price.

Chicago Wheat, Corn and Oats.

CHICAGO, April 3.—The corn market was active and strong Monday, helped by the heavy export demand and light offering and prices soared to the record for this season, May closing ¾c over Saturdry. The strength of corn turned the scale in favor of higher prices in the wheat pit which otherwise was afflicted with statistics of two sorts, May closing ⅜@½c higher. Provisions closed 5@7½c to 15c improved and May oats ¼@⅜c up.

General Carlin a Witness.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—General W. P. Carlin, U. S. A., retired, was a witness in the Coeur d'Alene investigation. He testified that he was in command of the United States troops in the Coeur d'Alenes during the trouble of 1892 and gave a recital of the disturbed condition there.

WEATHER FORECAST.

A Bismarck Story.

In M. Georges Michel's life of the late M. Leon Say some of the economist's letters are reproduced, and among them is one addressed to his wife describing the reception by Bismarck at Versailles of the war fine of £8,000,000 that Paris had to pay. M Leon Say was one of the commissioners sent with the money in bank notes to hand it over to German commissioners in Bismarck's presence. The £8,000,000 was counted on a billiard table. When this was done, a receipt was shown to M. Say and then placed in an envelope which was to be sealed.

The seal failing to bite into the wax, Bismarck impatiently said to the secretary, "You do not know your business."

He snatched the seal from him, rubbed it for a short time on the hair of his head and then said, "Try now."

The result was a clear impression.

According to the ancient practice of oriental monarchs, the Chinese emperor rewards those who bring him good news and punishes those who bring him bad news.

A Rapid Observer.

"Delightful people," he replied, "but frivolous, changeable and altogether incapable of forming an attachment of any duration."

"How long were you there?" asked his friend.

GRAND GULF CAVERN

Its Mysterious Depths Were First Explored by Two Men of More Than Ordinary Courage—The Story of Their Perilous Journey.

Southwest Missouri is full of strange earth formations that are called "natural" curiosities in spite of their unnaturalness. The earth is full of caves and sink holes. One of the most celebrated of these is the Grand Gulf, in Oregon county, about four miles from Koshkonong. It is a sort of canyon, in shape not unlike a horseshoe and serves the purpose of a drainage bed in the wet season for a 12 mile area of hills. The canyon is 220 feet deep, with a natural bridge in one place and a subterranean lake and river that opens at one end. The river only exists during the wet season, for the earth at the bottom of the canyon is porous and absorbs the water. The lake, however, is full the whole year round.

This cave, containing the subterranean river and lake, had never been explored to the end till the summer of 1885, when Pat Foley, a saloon keeper from Thayer, with a companion performed the exploit. Foley had made two trips before into the cave, but had not been able to secure a companion courageous enough to persevere in the enterprise. Each man had weakened and returned before the end of the cave was reached. On the third trip, however, Foley had with him a man of courage.

The entrance to the cave is wide and deep. The bed is of broken stones, over which trickles a tiny stream of water in the dry season. A hundred feet inside the cave the entrance suddenly narrows into a hole so small that a man must get on hands and knees to pass through. Beyond this narrow hole the entrance widens into a large grotto. There is a steep hill to climb; next the hill descends sharply into a lake. To penetrate to the end of this lake it was necessary to have a boat so small that it could be dragged through the narrow passage into the grotto.

Foley and his companion built a boat of suitable size and hauled it through the narrow entrance. They took with them also a long coil of rope, a quantity of matches, some railroad lanterns and four torches with cotton wadding on the ends soaked in kerosene. The cave of course is perfectly dark. The men used their lanterns till they got through the narrow place, but to their amazement the lantern flames inside the grotto slowly grew dim and finally went out. They tried to light them again, but the sulphur of the matches would flare up only to be extinguished immediately. The reason of this was that the atmosphere was exceedingly damp and heavy.

The men succeeded in lighting the four kerosene torches, and grasping one of them in each hand they made their way down the slope to the lake and stood the torches up between the rocks. The torches smoldered like hot coals, giving out very little flame. The boat was dragged down to the lake, the torches fastened at the prow and stern, one end of the rope tied to a bowlder and the rest of the coil thrown in the boat. When the two men sat down in the frail craft they found the water rose to within three inches of the gunwales. It was impossible to use oars without tipping the boat far enough to sink it, so the men were forced to paddle cautiously with their hands.

They forced the little craft into the unknown lake, the smoldering torches lighting up the blackness for only a few feet around them. Outside it was a warm summer day, they knew, but inside it was like a closed refrigerator, all blackness and dampness and cold. The water of the lake was ice cold, and at every few dips they had to stop and warm their hands. There was nothing to be seen on any side—nothing but darkness. No sound could penetrate the cavern. If the boat should capsize—as it was likely to do with the slightest disturbance—they would be cramped in a minute in the cold water without a chance of help from the outside.

After a long and tedious paddling the boat's prow was suddenly buried in a bank of mud and gravel. Foley took a torch and stepped out cautiously in his rubber boots into the mud. He found he had come to the end of the lake and that a sharply inclined wall of rock rose before him. The saloon keeper climbed up the wall about 40 feet above the lake searching for a continuance of the cavern. But he could find none. Apparently the cavern ended there. He returned to the boat, where his companion sat. The two men made their way across the lake and out through the narrow place in safety. They had been gone an hour, and their friends outside had begun to fear an accident had happened to them.

So far as people know, the cave in the Grand Gulf has no outlet. The Indian traditions about the cave are that it was a subterranean waterway much used at one time by boatmen, who used to carry provisions in boats to the Arkansas valley. If this be true, the river must have been stopped up many years ago by some convulsion of nature and the lake formed then.—Kansas City Star.

FUNNY HUMAN NATURE.

A Little Story That Illustrates Some of Its Peculiar Phases.

Young men can never tell where to look for an ally in their love affairs. A few afternoons ago one of them was leaving a handsome residence in the upper part of the city. He walked unsteadily, he will never be paler, and it was evident that he was in great trouble. He scarcely noticed the brisk approach of the old gentleman who owns the house and the daughter, though the suitor had been diligently dodging the father for months.

"Hello! What's this? Sick?" and the old gentleman firmly planted himself in the way of the retreating lover. "You're not fit to go out in this storm, young man. Come inside. Take a drop of cordial. What do you mean, risking your life like this?"

"Not there, sir," in a faint voice. "I'll never enter that house again. Your daughter just refused me."

Now the father had told her a score of times to "get rid of that chap," but he is sympathetic and choleric.

"What," pounding the walk with his cane, "refused you? Jilted you? Put you in this awful state? The minx! She'll hear from me! Look as though you were dying, poor fellow! How many times have you asked her?"

"Once."

"Only once? Thunderation, man, I'll bet I asked her mother 50,000 times before she'd have me! It's in the blood. Come in here. No, take a walk around the block and then come. The idea of that girl thinking that she knows her own mind! It's absurd! Brace up, now We'll bring her to time."

And it looks as though they would. The old gentleman looks sheepish, the girl laughs often without apparent cause, and the youth calls regularly.—Detroit Free Press.

Tommy's Triumph.

"Please, sir," asked Tommy of his teacher, "what is meant by the 'soothing weed?'"

"Does your father smoke, Tommy?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, sir," answered Tommy.

"And what does he smoke?" asked the teacher.

"Bacca!" cried Tommy.

"Tobacco, you mean, Tommy," corrected teacher. "Well, tobacco is often called 'the soothing weed.' But it is tobacco, Tommy, not 'bacca.' There is no such word in the dictionary."

"Yes, there is, sir," cried Tommy.

"You're mistaken, Tommy, there is not," said teacher severely. "But," he added, with a superior smile, "if you can show me the word 'bacca' in an English dictionary I will let you home an hour earlier than usual."

Tommy seized his dictionary, hastily turned over the leaves and pointed triumphantly to the word "bacca," "a fruit having seeds."

Teacher floored and Tommy triumphant.—London Answers.

Selfish Edward III.

King Edward III of England was a great epicure, but a selfish one. While he gorged himself with a multitude of courses and dishes, he forbade his servants eating meat or fish more than once a day and ordained by law that none of his subjects should have at dinner or supper more than two courses nor above three dishes for each course.

The Widow's Advantage.

Grimes—The chances are in favor of a widow marrying again against a single woman getting a husband.

Burns—That is because a widow is content to regard men as pretty much all alike, while a single woman wastes her time trying to find one who is different from all others.—Boston Transcript.

The Wretched Newspaper Man.

In every city of the land the newspaper man is an outcast. He knows more people to be a stranger to than any other being in the world. He has no holidays. His Christmas is the record of other men's joys. His Thanksgiving is a restaurant. Even the Fourth of July and Sunday, servants of the commonest man, refuse him their cheer. The Fourth of July is the day he must be in every place at once, because everything is happening, and Sunday is the day he must make things up, because nothing is happening.

His labors are our pleasures. He gets his vacation by doing another man's work and earns his living by watching other people live. The very days and the nights turn their natural backs upon him. The lamp is his sun by night, and the curtain is his night by day, and he eats his supper in the morning. His business is the reflection of life. He is the spirit behind the mirror. What is left to us is right to him, and right is left. Sometimes right side up is upside down.

The world is all awry to the newspaper man. It whirls across the hours in columns, now in one edition and now in another, but it heeds him never in return. He is a spectator. The show passes before his face—a shut out, unsharing face. He lives as the years go on, a notebook under the stars, and when the notebook is scribbled out he dies.—Gerald Stanley Lee in Atlantic.

The Emergency Clerk.

"I ran across a clerk here who is worth his weight in gold, or, at least, in gold bricks," said a guest at one of the hotels. "If I was in business in New Orleans, I would get that man if I had to chloroform and abduct him. The way I discovered his merits was this: I was standing in a store down the street, waiting for my wife to decide what she didn't want, when a tailor made girl walked up and asked to see some golf clubs. The young man behind the counter showed her several, and in a few moments she found one that suited her and went away with it under her arm.

"'Are there many players in New Orleans?' I asked after she had gone.

"'Oh, yes; quite a number!' replied the clerk affably.

"A look of real pain crossed the young man's face. 'I am sorry,' he said, 'very sorry, but the fact is we sold our last golf links this morning. However, we have ordered a new stock,' he added, brightening up, 'and they will be here in a few days. Which did you wish, the plain or the—er—fancy links?'

"A clerk like that is beyond price, sir, perfectly invaluable. Ten years hence I expect to find him a merchant prince."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Two Views of the Same Man.

"Why did you take that man's case?" the fresh graduate of the law school asked after his father, the old attorney, had bowed a client out of the office. "There is no possibility that you can win it for him. One glance at his face shows that he is the briber and all around rascal he is accused of being."

"Is that so?" the old man replied. "I'm sorry to hear it—really sorry. I wish I had known it."

"Why, you must have been able to see for yourself if you are any judge of character at all."

"I am usually pretty good at such things, but I must confess that I didn't notice it in this case. In fact, I didn't see his face at all."

"Didn't see his face!"

"No. He had a wallet in his hand that took my eye. Now you go to work and copy off that brief, and after this if you want to learn the business watch me, not the other fellow's face."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Dangerous Eggs.

A young clerk received instructions from the proprietor of a produce house in Front street some days ago to put into a case of eggs a card marked "Guaranteed."

The proprietor thought no more about the matter until later in the day, when he was called to the phone by the purchaser.

"I don't want these eggs," he said.

"What is the matter with them?" asked the proprietor.

"They are marked 'Quarantined' and are too suggestive of disease."

It developed later that the clerk had written "Quarantined" instead of "Guaranteed."—Memphis Scimitar.

THE EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

DAVIDSON BY 679, THOMPSON BY 900

WEISEND AVERAGED 18 VOTES TO A PRECINCT

The Total Vote Cast For Mayor Was 3,046 and For Marshal 2,856--Bryan Led All With 2,181.

Election day is over and the Republican nominee, W. C. Davidson, defeated Mayor Charles F. Bough, the Prohibition candidate, by 679 votes, the largest majority ever given a Republican candidate for that office.

The municipal campaign which closed yesterday was a hot one. Hardly any person expected the majority of Davidson to be so large, and on all sides were heard the statement that the race between Davidson and Bough would be close, and there would not be 200 votes between them. They based their statements on the fact that a great many things had been said about the church people supporting Bough, and that they did to some extent is shown by his vote, 1,102.

The success of Davidson was made assured by his friends, who left no stone unturned to land him a winner, and there is no doubt he is the most popular candidate the party has had in many years, and those who know him best state that he will make a splendid chief executive for the city.

As soon as the polls closed last evening the streets were crowded with people eager and anxious to hear the result, but they had to wait a long time. The Davidson supporters were making lots of noise and the small boys joined in the spirit of the thing and organized horn brigades to make tours of the city. By 9 o'clock it closely resembled the final night of a presidential campaign. The Bough voters were not much in evidence, but took the matter quietly, feeling secure that their man would succeed himself as mayor.

Long before the first precinct was received Washington street in front of the News Review office was crowded with people and every few minutes a partial report of the precincts was placed on the large bulletin board, showing that Davidson was in the load in all the precincts and constantly gaining.

The Bough supporters gave it up when this news was received and the only thing to be discussed was the total of Davidson's majority, and it was placed anywhere from 100 to 1,000. When the Fifth ward came in, giving Davidson 150 and Bough 135 and was placed on the board it was greeted with loud cheers, as the Davidson people realized they had nothing more to fear, as this was conceded to be Bough's strongest ward. Later returns proved that they were wrong, as the second precinct of the Fourth ward only went for Davidson by four votes. The News Review was the first to receive the complete vote of the city, and while the people at city hall were yet figuring with two or three precincts shy, the total of the city was given to the people who braved the weather to stand out in front of the News Review office in order that they might get the result and get it right.

There was a great deal of cutting yesterday, and but few straight tickets were voted, which accounts for the unusually late count.

The race for marshal between Thompson and McMillan is the only other race of the day in which much interest was taken, and while nobody expected to see McMillan land a winner, yet they expected to see him give Thompson a close chase. Thompson surprised even his best friends by beating McMillan 900 votes, and running not far behind the head of the ticket even with the strong fight that was made against him.

The total vote of the city and township was 3,143, and to Street Commissioner Bryan belongs the credit of leading the ticket with 2,181 votes, closely followed by Clerk Hanley with 2,178. Cemetery Trustee Dickey came next with 2,094, and City Treasurer Herbert was fourth with 2,083.

The women did not avail themselves of the privilege given them of voting on the candidates for board of education, and there was not 10 women voted in the entire city.

Weisend, the Democratic nominee, was not a figure in the race, and when his vote was totalled up he had only 163 votes to his credit. It is estimated that Davidson and Bough divided his vote, but it is conceded that a large end of it went to Davidson, and Bough's vote was made up from disgruntled Republicans.

Davidson's plurality over Bough was 679, and over Weisend 1,648. His majority was 516.

Thompson's majority over McMillan was 900.

Herbert for treasurer had a plurality of 1,844 over Potts and 1,699 over Bowman. His majority was 1,459.

Bryan for street commissioner had a plurality over McKenna of 1,957, and over Coventry of 1,781. His majority was 1,557.

McCarron for justice of the peace had a plurality of 1,680 over Cole, and over Morlan 1,362. His majority was 1,117.

Beardmore for township trustee had a majority of 1,669 over Shay.

Wells, the lowest man for school board on the Republican ticket had a majority of 1,611 over Kerr, the highest man on the Democratic ticket.

MARSHALL HAD A CLOSE CALL

And Arnold Led East End Vote But the Doctor Had 33 Over Miles.

HEDDLESTON, CRIPPS, M'LANE.

Although the entire Republican councilmanic ticket was elected yesterday there was at least two surprises when the vote was announced.

The first surprise came when the Fifth ward returns were received, and the comparatively close call Miles had given Marshall was announced. Marshall only defeated his Prohibition opponent by 33 votes, while Arnold, the other Republican candidate, had 68 votes to the good.

In the Second ward it had been conceded that Cook would give Nice a hard fight, and the Democrats made strenuous efforts to land their candidate a winner. They got out cards and went at it with a vim, but it was no use. Nice only beat Cook 403 votes, running ahead of the ticket in both precincts.

The vote by precincts is as follows:

Jerry McMillan's words, uttered in the News Review office this morning, have the right ring, and sound like true metal:

—Richard Simons left this morning for Steubenville, where he will remain several days on business.

COOK BEATEN FIVE TO ONE

O. D. Nice Had a Wonderful Victory For Council In the Second Ward.

MARSHALL HAD A CLOSE CALL

And Arnold Led East End Vote But the Doctor Had 33 Over Miles.

HEDDLESTON, CRIPPS, M'LANE.

Although the entire Republican councilmanic ticket was elected yesterday there was at least two surprises when the vote was announced.

The first surprise came when the Fifth ward returns were received, and the comparatively close call Miles had given Marshall was announced. Marshall only defeated his Prohibition opponent by 33 votes, while Arnold, the other Republican candidate, had 68 votes to the good.

In the Second ward it had been conceded that Cook would give Nice a hard fight, and the Democrats made strenuous efforts to land their candidate a winner. They got out cards and went at it with a vim, but it was no use. Nice only beat Cook 408 votes, running ahead of the ticket in both precincts.

Candidates.	1	2

A RAZORBACK HUNT.

While it is generally accounted that the sheep and Angora goat furnish most of the revenues to the rancher in the broken and wooded country south of the Staked plains and west of the Colorado river, it is nevertheless a fact that the razorback hog contributes a full share. Probably there is no country anywhere better adapted to the production of cheap pork. The hills are covered with cedar and a great variety of scrub oak trees, and the canyons and river valleys are heavily wooded with pecan and Spanish walnut, so that there is always an abundance of excellent mast, and it might be mentioned that the cedar berries are considered equal to corn in lard producing qualities.

With this sort of feed, which is always abundant, the expense of care and feeding is removed, the animals simply running at large over the country, so that the only outlay required is that of the first cost of a few head for a start. Running loose in this way they are not subject to the diseases common to the hog in the sty or feed lot, and, being excellent fighters, they hold their own with the wolves and other wild animals which prey on the sheep and goats. Thus they multiply very rapidly.

In order to get the benefit of the increase in his stock, however, it is necessary for the rancher to get his mark on the pigs. As this, owing to the roughness of the country and the wildness of the sows, is no small task, it is generally the custom for all the hog owners in a given section to turn out together with their dogs and practically "round up" the range.

Compared with one of these "hog hunts" a cattle "round up" is a quiet and commonplace affair. On the morning appointed the dogs are turned loose and started out on a hog trail, and the men ride after them just as on a wolf chase. As the pigs cannot hold out very long one of them is soon caught, and his squeals bring back the rest of the bunch to his aid. As soon as the pig is free the sows form a circle around the pigs, from which they now and then dash out at their tormentors and all the while grunting like the rattling of a hundred old wagons. By the time the uproar has reached its full height the hunters ride up and hiss the dogs on to seize the sows. When one is caught, two men go to the assistance of the dog, one with a club to beat off the other hogs, the other with a bit of rope to tie the one seized. When all of them have thus been put out of the way of fighting, the pigs are caught and marked. Then the sows are given their liberty, and the dogs start out on a new trail. When it happens that there are hogs belonging to several different men, the pigs are simply divided.

While the work of "marking" is more like sport than labor it is not less exciting than that of getting the hogs ready for market, for as it is impossible to drive them any distance—even to the corrals at the ranches—it is necessary simply to butcher them out in the hills.

So along in the early part of the winter, after the new mast has fallen and the hogs are as fat as they will get, the ranchers load their wagons with salt, grub, kettles and lard cans, take their dogs and Winchesters and strike out for the hills. They make camp near some spring or water hole and then begin the work of "killing," which includes the rendering of the lard and salting of the meat. It is like a great hunt. Whenever a wagon load of lard and meat has been put up it is taken to the nearest ranch and left there until the "killing" season is over; then it is loaded again and freighted to the nearest railroad point, where it is sold at the market price.

It is said that only one man in that country ever tried driving his hogs to market. That was "Uncle" Ben Pepper, who lives a few miles above Junction City, on the South Llano river. He had, he supposed, about 300 head of fat hogs, and the idea of that "killing" worried him. So he hired all the men in the country, got all the dogs in Kimble and Edwards counties and "rounded up" all the hogs to be found. It was, of course, impossible to keep the herd together, and as it scattered Ben ordered his men to separate a little and keep moving toward Kerrville.

At noon on the fourth day the line was within half a mile of the Guadaloupe river, the men were half a mile apart and every dog worn out. Then Ben decided that he would like to know how many hogs he had, as after passing the Guadaloupe it would be impossible to see them in the open again. So he ordered the ends of the line to swing in and close up toward the river. It was nearly sunset when the circle was completed, and he climbed into a tall pecan so as to get a better view of the hogs when they should come swarming out into the river. He watched intently until night was falling; then he saw a lean, old sow emerge from the bushes and go down to drink, and a moment later the drivers began coming out. He nearly fell out of the tree. He has never tried driving since.—Kansas City Journal.

The Turkish Autocrat.

The sultan of Turkey rises at 6 and after devoting the whole morning to work with his secretaries breakfasts at noon. After this he takes a drive or a row on the lake in his vast park. At 8 he dines and amuses himself during the evening with his family, listening while his daughter plays on the piano. He is extremely fond of music. The sultan dresses like an English gentleman, but invariably in a frock coat, the breast of which on great occasions is richly embroidered and blazing with decorations. There are over 400 cooks and scullions employed in the imperial palace.

The famous gardens of Versailles have cost £8,000,000.

The woman who mislays her hat and looks for it in her purse, among other impossible places, is very like the physician who looks in all sort of impossible places for the cause of a disease. The heart begins to act irregularly and straightway there's an examination of the heart to find what is interfering with it. The liver gives trouble, and is dosed with drugs and pounded with pills to bring to light the cause, and all the time the cause of the trouble is in the stomach.

The intimate connection of the stomach with the heart and the other vital organs, necessarily results in the sympathy of these organs with any derangement of disease of the stomach and the organs of digestion and nutrition.

Thousands have been cured of palpitation, liver trouble, shortness of breath, pain in the side, backache, and numerous other complaints by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This medicine acts directly upon the stomach, the organs of digestion and nutrition and the blood making glands, and the fact that it cures so many forms of disease is the best proof that these diseases originate in the stomach and must be cured through the stomach.

"I had been a great sufferer for several years, and my family doctor said I would not be a living man in two years, but, thank God, I am still living," writes Mr. George W. Trustow, of Lipscomb, Augusta Co., Va. "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is what saved my life. I had heart trouble so bad that I could not lie on my left side without a great deal of pain. I was nearly past work when I commenced your medicine, but I can do about as much work now as any man. I cannot say too much for the benefit I have received."

A RAZORBACK HUNT.

While it is generally accounted that the sheep and Angora goat furnish most of the revenues to the rancher in the broken and wooded country south of the Staked plains and west of the Colorado river, it is nevertheless a fact that the razorback hog contributes a full share. Probably there is no country anywhere better adapted to the production of cheap pork. The hills are covered with cedar and a great variety of scrub oak trees, and the canyons and river valleys are heavily wooded with pecan and Spanish walnut, so that there is always an abundance of excellent mast, and it might be mentioned that the cedar berries are considered equal to corn in lard producing qualities.

With this sort of feed, which is always abundant, the expense of care and feeding is removed, the animals simply running at large over the country, so that the only outlay required is that of the first cost of a few head for a start. Running loose in this way they are not subject to the diseases common to the hog in the sty or feed lot, and, being excellent fighters, they hold their own with the wolves and other wild animals which prey on the sheep and goats. Thus they multiply very rapidly.

In order to get the benefit of the increase in his stock, however, it is necessary for the rancher to get his mark on the pigs. As this, owing to the roughness of the country and the wildness of the sows, is no small task, it is generally the custom for all the hog owners in a given section to turn out together with their dogs and practically "round up" the range.

Compared with one of these "hog hunts" a cattle "round up" is a quiet and commonplace affair. On the morning appointed the dogs are turned loose and started out on a hog trail, and the men ride after them just as on a wolf chase. As the pigs cannot hold out very long one of them is soon caught, and his squeals bring back the rest of the bunch to his aid. As soon as the pig is free the sows form a circle around the pigs, from which they now and then dash out at their tormentors and all the while grunting like the rattling of a hundred old wagons. By the time the uproar has reached its full height the hunters ride up and hiss the dogs on to seize the sows. When one is caught, two men go to the assistance of the dog, one with a club to beat off the other hogs, the other with a bit of rope to tie the one seized. When all of them have thus been put out of the way of fighting, the pigs are caught and marked. Then the sows are given their liberty, and the dogs start out on a new trail. When it happens that there are hogs belonging to several different men, the pigs are simply divided.

While the work of "marking" is more like sport than labor it is not less exciting than that of getting the hogs ready for market, for as it is impossible to drive them any distance—even to the corrals at the ranches—it is necessary simply to butcher them out in the hills.

So along in the early part of the winter, after the new mast has fallen and the hogs are as fat as they will get, the ranchers load their wagons with salt, grub, kettles and lard cans, take their dogs and Winchesters and strike out for the hills. They make camp near some spring or water hole and then begin the work of "killing," which includes the rendering of the lard and salting of the meat. It is like a great hunt. Whenever a wagon load of lard and meat has been put up it is taken to the nearest ranch and left there until the "killing" season is over; then it is loaded again and freighted to the nearest railroad point, where it is sold at the market price.

It is said that only one man in that country ever tried driving his hogs to market. That was "Uncle" Ben Pepper, who lives a few miles above Junction City, on the South Llano river. He had, he supposed, about 300 head of fat hogs, and the idea of that "killing" worried him. So he hired all the men in the country, got all the dogs in Kimble and Edwards counties and "rounded up" all the hogs to be found. It was, of course, impossible to keep the herd together, and as it scattered Ben ordered his men to separate a little and keep moving toward Kerrville.

At noon on the fourth day the line was within half a mile of the Guadaloupe river, the men were half a mile apart and every dog worn out. Then Ben decided that he would like to know how many hogs he had, as after passing the Guadaloupe it would be impossible to see them in the open again. So he ordered the ends of the line to swing in and close up toward the river. It was nearly sunset when the circle was completed, and he climbed into a tall pecan so as to get a better view of the hogs when they should come swarming out into the river. He watched intently until night was falling; then he saw a lean, old sow emerge from the bushes and go down to drink, and a moment later the drivers began coming out. He nearly fell out of the tree. He has never tried driving since.—Kansas City Journal.

The Turkish Autocrat.

The sultan of Turkey rises at 6 and after devoting the whole morning to work with his secretaries breakfasts at noon. After this he takes a drive or a row on the lake in his vast park. At 8 he dines and amuses himself during the evening with his family, listening while his daughter plays on the piano. He is extremely fond of music. The sultan dresses like an English gentleman, but invariably in a frock coat, the breast of which on great occasions is richly embroidered and blazing with decorations. There are over 400 cooks and scullions employed in the imperial palace.

The famous gardens of Versailles have cost £8,000,000.

The woman who mislays her hat and looks for it in her purse, among other impossible places, is very like the physician who looks in all sort of impossible places for the cause of a disease. The heart begins to act irregularly and straightway there's an examination of the heart to find what is interfering with it. The liver gives trouble, and is dosed with drugs and pounded with pills to bring to light the cause, and all the time the cause of the trouble is in the stomach.

The intimate connection of the stomach with the heart and the other vital organs, necessarily results in the sympathy of these organs with any derangement or disease of the stomach and the organs of digestion and nutrition.

Thousands have been cured of palpitation, liver trouble, shortness of breath, pain in the side, backache, and numerous other complaints by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This medicine acts directly upon the stomach, the organs of digestion and nutrition and the blood making glands, and the fact that it cures so many forms of disease is the best proof that these diseases originate in the stomach and must be cured through the stomach.

"I had been a great sufferer for several years and my family doctor said I would not be a living man in two years, but, thank God, I am still living," writes Mr. George W. Trustow, of Lipscomb, Augusta Co., Va. "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is what saved my life. I had heart trouble so bad that I could not lie on my left side without a great deal of pain. I was nearly past work when I commenced your medicine, but I can do about as much work now as any man. I cannot say too much for the benefit I have received."

THE BALLOT BOX TAMPERED WITH

And at Least Four Ballots Altered, According to the Finding of the Washington Tp. Committee.

OTHER ALTERATIONS ALLEGED

By the Two Tayler Members of the Committee, But Judge Moore Declines to Concur.

TAYLER WINS BY TWO MAJORITY

The following dispatch from Lisbon, giving the official report of the committee which investigated the Washington township vote at the congressional primaries, shows that R. W. Tayler keeps the four delegates from that township by a majority of two votes on the recount. If the four ballots said to have been tampered with, had been counted for Baker, he would have had two majority. The committee is unanimous in declaring Tayler carried the township by two votes.

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special.)—The special committee appointed by the Republican central committee to investigate the returns for congressman from Washington township at the primaries March 24 has reported as follows:

"Hon. I. B. Cameron, Chairman Columbiana County Republican Central Committee:

"We, the committee appointed by you at the convention held at Lisbon, O., upon the 27th ultimo, to investigate and make report upon the recent county primary election held in Washington township, beg leave to submit the following report:

"We find upon the evidence before us that the election held in Washington township was a legal election and conducted in all material respects in conformity with the laws relating thereto. We find further that the officials and assistants in charge of said election were both honest and faithful and not guilty of any fraud or attempt to defraud therein.

The Only Peculiarity.

"The only peculiarity of said election making an investigation necessary was that there were 12 more ballots in the ballot box than there were names on the poll books kept by the clerk, and the reason assigned for this by the Washington township board of election—that the clerk did not record the names as fast as they were polled—seems to the committee, on hearing the evidence, to be correct and adequate.

"The fact that a number of persons well known to the board of election and remembered by them cast ballots at said election, but whose names were not recorded on the clerk's book strengthens the explanation. The vote for candidates for congress being a close one, perhaps required an examination.

The Official Count.

"The official count made at Salineville gave Tayler 200; Baker, 194, and the total ballots counted exceeded by 12 the number of names upon the clerk's book. Had the last 12 votes not been counted, we find from the evidence that the vote would have stood Tayler 195, Baker 187. It is evident therefrom that whether all the ballots in the box should have been counted, as the Washington township board did do, or all except the last 12, as strict compliance with the law may require, Mr. Tayler had a majority, in the first case of six votes and in the second case of eight votes.

The Recount.

"This committee recounted said ballots as they were when the ballot box, ballots, poll books and tally sheets were delivered to us, and we made said recount in the presence of W. R. Dutton and E. R. Blazy, who were the judge and supervisor, respectively, at said election in said township. One of them was a supporter of Mr. Tayler and one a supporter of Mr. Baker. The 12 extra ballots were shown us, and they were the last counted by us. The result of our count without counting the last 12 ballots was: Tayler, 193; Baker, 189, and 6 for neither candidate.

"We then counted the last 12 ballots and found them to be: 1 for Tayler, 7 for Baker and 4 with an X mark to the left of each name of the candidates for congress.

Dutton and Blazy Interrupt

"Thereupon and immediately, and without being asked therefor, both Dutton and Blazy declared that this was wrong, that said 12 ballots should be 5 for Tayler and 7 for Baker; and, after looking at said 4 ballots with the X mark to the left of each of the congressional candidates' names, declared that these four had been altered and evidently had an extra X mark placed upon them in the space to the left of the name of Mr. Baker; and both of them (Dutton and Blazy) repeated that said 12 ballots were the last they counted and strung, and when so counted and strung had been put in the ballot box and said ballot box locked on the evening of March 24, said ballots then showing 5 for Tayler and 7 for Baker.

"The result of our count, including said 12 ballots, counting the said four ballots for Tayler is: Tayler, 198; Baker, 196; a majority of two votes for Mr. Tayler.

The Finding.

"We, therefore, find that upon the foregoing facts, Mr. Tayler carried said township at said primary election for the office of congressman; and we would respectfully recommend the issue of proper certificates of election to the delegates in Washingtown township chosen by Mr. Tayler.

"The four ballots of said 12, which we find as aforesaid, were evidently changed after said ballot box and its contents left the possession of the election officers on the evening of March 24.

GOVERNOR TAYLOR MAY BE INDICTED.

Democrats Will Make a Charge of Usurpation of Office Against Him.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 3.—The April term of the Franklin circuit court and the grand jury working under it, which will investigate the assassination of Governor Goebel, began work.

Judge Cantrill's charge to the grand jury was brief and devoid of anything of a sensational nature. He said in part:

"You know the horrible situation in this county better than I can depict it. I hope and believe this grand jury, realizing the responsibilities resting upon it, will discharge its entire duty fearlessly, fairly and impartially, and if it does, no man or set of men can lay complaint at your door when your labors terminate."

While nothing was said by Judge Cantrill in his charge concerning it, it is understood that Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin will recommend the bringing of an indictment against Republican Governor Taylor and all the other Republican state officers, on the charge of usurpotion of the offices they are claiming to hold. During the court preliminaries, Attorney James Andrew Scott, for the Democrats, filed an amended petition in the cases of the Democratic state officers, other than governor and lieutenant governor, against the defendants, in which damages for alleged usurpation and unlawful retention of the offices in dispute are asked.

The suit of Alonzo Walker against Republican Governor Taylor and Adjutant General Collier, for $50,000, was called, but the defendants had not filed answers and the case was passed. Walker was arrested by the militia while serving a civil process on Governor Taylor, a few days after the assassination of Goebel, and was held as a prisoner several days.

Fat Man Wanted a Correction.

"That was a fine report you had of the explosion," puffed the fat man, who did not know there was an elevator in the building and climbed three flights of stairs to the editor's office, "a fine report, I must say." And sarcasm fairly rang in his tones. "Did you know that it was my furnace that blew up, that I stand the loss, that but for me you wouldn't have the item?"

"If you are D. J. Jones, we did."

"I am D. Jacobus Jones. You didn't even spell out my middle name. You'd think that my wife and hired girl were the whole thing the way you wrote it up."

"The girl was terribly burned, and your wife was badly hurt while saving the girl. You don't appear to have had any hand in the matter."

"Didn't, hey? Did you notice how slowly I sat down when I came in here? Did you hear me stifle a groan? I'm sore as a felon from the crown of my head to the sole of my foot. That's what I am. But there's not a word about that."

"Were you in the explosion?"

"No. Wish I had been. When I heard the report, I knew some one must be hurt. I fell down stairs. I ran five blocks for a doctor. When I got home, I was so exhausted that I had to retire, and this morning I had to roll out of bed on a chair to get up. It wasn't my fault that the doctor was out or that an ambulance was at the house when I got back. You can say that I showed great presence of mind and got out and humped myself or stop my paper. Good day!"—Detroit Free Press.

They Pay the Rent.

"There is," says a traveler, "a stock saying which they have at Queenstown, Ireland. It is there the steamers pick up the mails, which can leave London 12 hours later than the boats do Liverpool and overtake them there. Frequently, however, delays occur, and then the passengers kill time by going ashore, and the native is always in wait to sell them shillalahs and other things, such as bog oak jewelry, canes, etc., which are supposedly indigenous to and characteristic of Ireland.

"Some of the shillalahs are wonderful and awful to look upon and have no possible place in real life, their only object being to take in the unwary transatlantic traveler. One I saw there had a head fully six inches in diameter, with projecting knobs and roots thickly covering it. It was so heavy that to lift it was an effort and to carry it any distance without using a dray a physical impossibility. It was a murderous looking weapon, and a blow from it on the head would have done for any living thing, even a darky from Georgia.

"'Why,' I asked in my surprise, 'what on earth do you use this for?'

"'That?' he rejoined. 'Arrah, that's what we pay the rint with.'

"I've got it yet."—New York Tribune.

Adhesive and Pressed Stamps.

"It is not necessary to do that, as is commonly supposed," said a lawyer. "You may take your scissors and cut out the adhesive (not the impressed) stamp and stick it fast to your new envelope with mucilage notwithstanding the adhering piece of the old envelope.

"It does not look nice and may become detached in the mail, but if the stamp is a genuine, unused, adhesive stamp it is not questioned. The government when it sells an adhesive 2 cent stamp undertakes for such consideration to transport and deliver to destination the letter to which it is affixed. The fact that it has a piece of an envelope to which it was formerly attached, but not used or deposited for mailing, does not relieve the government to execute its part of the contract when the letter is deposited for mailing, the stamp being otherwise perfect.

"An impressed stamp, however, cut from an envelope is defective and invalid for postage purposes. It is astonishing how many of these are used, some people apparently being unable or too ignorant to discriminate between adhesive and impressed stamps."—Washington Star.

INFORMED OF A PLOT.

Steunenberg Told of Strikers' Conspiracy to Blow Up the Mines In Idaho.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The chief interest in Governor Steunenberg's testimony before the Coeur d'Alene investigation was in his continuance of the recital, begun at the last session of the committee, of disturbed conditions prior to the uprising of April last.

At one point he said in part:

"I learned that Ed Boyce, president of the Western Federation of Miners, was in that county ten days before the explosion of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill, and at that time he inaugurated or perfected this conspiracy by choosing 20 men from the different organizations in that county and swearing them.

"These 20 men chose one each and swore him, and the 40 each chose a man and swore him, and the 80 each chose a man and swore him. In that way there were at least 160 men in this conspiracy to do this thing sworn to secrecy."

The name of the mutual friend, the governor finally gave as A. B. Campbell.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating of it." If any city or town in the Union has sufficient proof on the following subject it is East Liverpool. Genuine merit is finding its reward in the hearty endorsement of local citizens. When people right here at home, friends and neighbors of our readers, give a statement like the following for publication, it is proof convincing for the most skeptical. Read this testimony:

Mr. Thomas Laughlin, of 172 Sophia street, engineer, says: "I caught cold and neglected it. It settled in my back and kidneys, forced me to quit work and almost cost me my life. I could not move without suffering, and often could neither sit, stand or lie for pain. The secretions of the kidneys went wrong and distressed, and annoyed me both night and day. I took medicines for two years, but did not get well. When I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at the W. &. W. pharmacy. Noticing some improvement by the time I had taken the first half of the box, I continued until I took four boxes and my back was all right, as well as the urinary trouble. I will substantiate my statement of Doan's Kidney Pills if any one will come to my house to investigate for themselves. My wife had some backache also; she took Doan's Kidney Pills and was cured."

TRAPPED BY AN AMERICAN.

He Commanded the Boers When They Ambushed the British and Took Their Guns.

BUSHMANS KOP, April 3.—The Boers, who were hidden in the spruit when the British guns were captured, were commanded by Reyesman, a German-American.

The Boers retired when they discovered the British scouts, leaving two Dutch military attaches, one of them dangerously wounded, in the hands of the British. All the wounded are doing well.

Every one agrees that but for Colonel Broadwood's splendid handling of his troops, not a member of the force would have escaped.

Railway Track Guarded—Pilot Train Runs Ahead.

LONDON, April 3.—Queen Victoria left Windsor at 9:30 last evening, enroute for Ireland. Her majesty is accompanied by Princess Christian and Princess Henry, of Battenberg, and is attended by the Countess of Antrim,

PRINCE ALEXANDER OF TECK.

He Commanded Captured British Convoy, but Escaped.

Hon. Harriet Phipps, Sir Arthur Biggs, private secretary to the queen; Sir Fleetwood Edwards, keeper of her majesty's privy purse, and Captain Ponsomby.

Prince of Teck Reported Safe.

LONDON, April 3.—The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Standard says that the Prince of Teck was in charge of the transport, but was safe.

GOVERNOR TAYLOR MAY BE INDICTED.

Democrats Will Make a Charge of Usurpation of Office Against Him.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 3.—The April term of the Franklin circuit court and the grand jury working under it, which will investigate the assassination of Governor Goebel, began work.

Judge Cantrill's charge to the grand jury was brief and devoid of anything of a sensational nature. He said in part:

"You know the horrible situation in this county better than I can depict it. I hope and believe this grand jury, realizing the responsibilities resting upon it, will discharge its entire duty fearlessly, fairly and impartially, and if it does, no man or set of men can lay complaint at your door when your labors terminate."

While nothing was said by Judge Cantrill in his charge concerning it, it is understood that Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin will recommend the bringing of an indictment against Republican Governor Taylor and all the other Republican state officers, on the charge of usurpation of the offices they are claiming to hold. During the court preliminaries, Attorney James Andrew Scott, for the Democrats, filed an amended petition in the cases of the Democratic state officers, other than governor and lieutenant governor, against the defendants, in which damages for alleged usurpation and unlawful retention of the offices in dispute are asked.

The suit of Alonzo Walker against Republican Governor Taylor and Adjutant General Collier, for $50,000, was called, but the defendants had not filed answers and the case was passed. Walker was arrested by the militia while serving a civil process on Governor Taylor, a few days after the assassination of Goebel, and was held as a prisoner several days.

Fat Man Wanted a Correction.

"That was a fine report you had of the explosion," puffed the fat man, who did not know there was an elevator in the building and climbed three flights of stairs to the editor's office. "a fine report, I must say." And sarcasm fairly rang in his tones. "Did you know that it was my furnace that blew up, that I stand the loss, that but for me you wouldn't have the item?"

"If you are D. J. Jones, we did."

"I am D. Jacobus Jones. You didn't even spell out my middle name. You'd think that my wife and hired girl were the whole thing the way you wrote it up."

"The girl was terribly burned, and your wife was badly hurt while saving the girl. You don't appear to have had any hand in the matter."

"Didn't, hey? Did you notice how slowly I sat down when I came in here? Did you hear me stifle a groan? I'm sore as a felon from the crown of my head to the sole of my foot. That's what I am. But there's not a word about that."

"Were you in the explosion?"

"No. Wish I had been. When I heard the report, I knew some one must be hurt. I fell down stairs. I ran five blocks for a doctor. When I got home, I was so exhausted that I had to retire, and this morning I had to roll out of bed on a chair to get up. It wasn't my fault that the doctor was out or that an ambulance was at the house when I got back. You can say that I showed great presence of mind and got out and humped myself or stop my paper. Good day!"—Detroit Free Press.

They Pay the Rent.

"There is," says a traveler, "a stock saying which they have at Queenstown, Ireland. It is there the steamers pick up the mails, which can leave London 12 hours later than the boats do Liverpool and overtake them there. Frequently, however, delays occur, and then the passengers kill time by going ashore, and the native is always in wait to sell them shillalahs and other things, such as bog oak jewelry, canes, etc., which are supposedly indigenous to and characteristic of Ireland.

"Some of the shillalahs are wonderful and awful to look upon and have no possible place in real life, their only object being to take in the unwary transatlantic traveler. One I saw there had a head fully six inches in diameter, with projecting knobs and roots thickly covering it. It was so heavy that to lift it was an effort and to carry it any distance without using a dray a physical impossibility. It was a murderous looking weapon, and a blow from it on the head would have done for any living thing, even a darky from Georgia.

"'Why,' I asked in my surprise, 'what on earth do you use this for?'

"'That?' he rejoined. 'Arrah, that's what we pay the rint with.'

"I've got it yet."—New York Tribune.

Adhesive and Pressed Stamps.

"It is not necessary to do that, as is commonly supposed," said a lawyer. "You may take your scissors and cut out the adhesive (not the impressed) stamp and stick it fast to your new envelope with mucilage notwithstanding the adhering piece of the old envelope.

"It does not look nice and may become detached in the mail, but if the stamp is a genuine, unused, adhesive stamp it is not questioned. The government when it sells an adhesive 2 cent stamp undertakes for such consideration to transport and deliver to destination the letter to which it is affixed. The fact that it has a piece of an envelope to which it was formerly attached, but not used or deposited for mailing, does not relieve the government to execute its part of the contract when the letter is deposited for mailing, the stamp being otherwise perfect.

"An impressed stamp, however, cut from an envelope is defective and invalid for postage purposes. It is astonishing how many of these are used, some people apparently being unable or too ignorant to discriminate between adhesive and impressed stamps."—Washington Star.

INFORMED OF A PLOT.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The chief interest in Governor Steunenberg's testimony before the Coeur d'Alene investigation was in his continuance of the recital, begun at the last session of the committee, of disturbed conditions prior to the uprising of April last.

At one point he said in part:

"I learned that Ed Boyce, president of the Western Federation of Miners, was in that county ten days before the explosion of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill, and at that time he inaugurated or perfected this conspiracy by choosing 20 men from the different organizations in that county and swearing them.

"These 20 men chose one each and swore him, and the 40 each chose a man and swore him, and the 80 each chose a man and swore him. In that way there were at least 160 men in this conspiracy to do this thing sworn to secrecy."

The name of the mutual friend, the governor finally gave as A. B. Campbell.

PLENTY OF IT.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating of it." If any city or town in the Union has sufficient proof on the following subject it is East Liverpool. Genuine merit is finding its reward in the hearty endorsement of local citizens. When people right here at home, friends and neighbors of our readers, give a statement like the following for publication, it is proof convincing for the most skeptical. Read this testimony:

Mr. Thomas Laughlin, of 172 Sophia street, engineer, says: "I caught cold and neglected it. It settled in my back and kidneys, forced me to quit work and almost cost me my life. I could not move without suffering, and often could neither sit, stand or lie for pain. The secretions of the kidneys went wrong and distressed, and annoyed me both night and day. I took medicines for two years, but did not get well. When I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at the W. &. W. pharmacy. Noticing some improvement by the time I had taken the first half of the box, I continued until I took four boxes and my back was all right, as well as the urinary trouble. I will substantiate my statement of Doan's Kidney Pills if any one will come to my house to investigate for themselves. My wife had some backache also; she took Doan's Kidney Pills and was cured."

Sold for 50 cents per box by all deal-ers.

WEISEND.

If Mr. J. Weisend was in earnest in his candidacy, and in his effort to reach the mayor's chair, then must he be the worst disgusted politician ever seeking the ballots of his party. And Weisend bears the record of being a good and square citizen.

OUR COUNCIL.

We expect much of this body during the next two years. The News Review believes that the members thereof will act in harmony with the mayor and marshal in the enforcement of existing laws and in the preservation of good order.

SWELLED HEAD.

It is an awful disease, and much to be dreaded by men possessed of good common sense. When you appreciate the fact that an attack is coming upon you, and you commence to believe that you are the "whole menagerie," and that you possess all the knowledge and wisdom that has been issued to men, get a compress for your cranium, think of some of the petty little meannesses you have been guilty of, climb off your stilts and stand on terra firma.

BAD BOYS.

The conduct of the boys in front of the News Review office was abominable last night, and on several occasions it seemed that some of the number would crash through the plate glass windows. Officers were called by phone, promised to respond, and signally failed to pay any attention to their promise. It is hoped that the marshal-elect, T. V. Thompson, will be chief of police in reality, and not a mere figure head.

COOK.

In the words of Shakespeare, Mr. Edward Cook's "goose was thoroughly cooked." Ed. assured the writer that he was confident of election, and even mapped out his plan of procedure when seated in a councilmanic chair. It was cruel to thus treat you, Edward, and you have our heartfelt sympathy in your hours of humiliation. Some of those yellow circulars, handed around by you and your "twin," the would-be artist, might have saved you. Hey, Edward?

NOT THE "RIGHT BOWER."

He was the Republican nominee for burgess of East Palestine. The directory says he is a saloonkeeper. East Palestine is a Republican town. Bower was apparently safe to win; but it seems that many Republican voters are not backers of the liquor league, and this "Bower" did not capture the trick. Moral: Divorce the liquor league from politics. A voter can be a good and true Republican, and still have a good, hearty, honest hatred of the accursed rum traffic, in all its forms and disguises.

LOUDER THAN WORDS.

Many grand citizens of East Liverpool voted against W. C. Davidson and T. V. Thompson on account of the firm belief that these nominees of the Republican party were in league with the liquor league and saloon element, and could be controlled thereby. The surest way in all the world to successfully refute this is by the actions of these officers during the next two years. The writer believes that these two men will aim to do their sworn duty. Time will tell the story. Actions speak louder than words.

HEADS OF THE TICKET.

The Republican party has highly honored W. C. Davidson and T. V. Thompson. Will the men thus honored do honor to the city of East Liverpool and her citizens? The News Review earnestly hopes that they will prove to be the best executive officers ever elected by this municipality. They can make or unmake themselves during the next two years. Good and clean government and the enforcement of law and order means a second and possibly a third term, while failure means failure indeed.

OUR BULLETINS.

They found general favor last night, and there was an immense crowd of orderly citizens in attendance, a class of men who are a credit to any city. The only annoyance was caused by a crowd of young hoodlums, youngsters whom the law declares should be at their homes at the hour we designate, and would have been had the marshal and his roundsmen paid any attention to their duty or promises. Intense interest was manifested respecting the head of the ticket, and the result seemed to meet with general favor.

TURNED HIM DOWN HARD

ST. CLAIR WENT REPUBLICAN.

East Palestine, April 3.—(Special.)—H. E. Bower, the saloonist who flouted his nomination for mayor on the Republican ticket in the faces of the local option majority of East Palestine, adding this insult to the injury they smarted under in his successful appeal to the circuit court against Mayor Lyon's sentence upon him for delivering liquor in the village from his saloon across the village line, met a stunning rebuke at the polls yesterday. He was the only Republican on the ticket who was defeated. Adolph Mascher, the Democratic nominee, a village business man, polled 275 votes to 266 for Bower. At the Republican primaries Bower got 193 to 158 for Mayor Lyon, whom he defeated for renomination. All the rest of the Republican ticket received comfortable majorities yesterday. There was a very large vote out.

DENNIS RE-ELECTED.

Wellsville, April 3.—(Special.)—Mayor Dennis, Democrat, was re-elected yesterday. He had 708 to 527 for J. C. Catlett, Republican. The balance of the Republican ticket won. The liquor issue is said to have figured largely in the mayor fight.

Salem, April 3.—(Special.)—Mayor Paul Huxley, Republican, was re-elected yesterday by 1,076 votes to 691 for John Scott, Democratic nominee. For solicitor, Metzgar, Republican, had 944, A. W. Taylor 809. The entire Republican ticket won.

LISBON'S VOTE.

IN ST. CLAIR TOWNSHIP

It's a cold day when St. Clair township cannot turn up morning after election with a tie vote for some office. Every election held there since November has had a tie. The result yesterday was: Township clerk, J. J. Ansley, R., 110; Mehaffey, D., 106; township trustee, Clapsaddle, D., 125; Miller, R., 92; treasurer, Huston, R., 108; Wright, D., 104; assessor, Orr, D., 125; Saint, R., 92; constable, Faulk, R., 106; Smith, D., 106.

How Far Apart Did They Live?

"I was at the capitol one day," said a Boston lawyer, "in attendance upon a committee having in charge a bill in which my clients are interested. On the long, leather covered settee near me two southern members were smoking and conversing. The following words were jotted down by me verbatim:

"'Majah, I was down among youh people last summer, and I wanted to find Gen'al Blood's plantation, but I got off my road. Where does he live from youh place, majah?'

"'Then that must be the reason I missed it. I went too far around the river bend.'

"Now, these gentlemen understood each other beyond a doubt. But what I want to know is, how many miles was it from the major's plantation to the general's? And for the life of me I can't solve the question. It haunted me so that I stumbled two or three times when subsequently making my argument before the committee, of which these two members formed a part."—Washington Star.

Sapphires Not All Blue.

"It is commonly believed that the sapphire is known only as a gem of a rich velvety blue in color," observed an experienced dealer in precious stones to the writer the other day. "As a matter of fact, the sapphire occurs in various hues. In Ceylon, for instance, where the finest specimens of this gem are found, it ranges from the soft velvety blue to the peacock blue, graduated in the latter to an almost faultless white. It also occurs in whites, greens and yellows, the latter shade being known as the oriental topaz and the green the oriental emerald.

"The white sapphires are often found clouded or streaked with blue, so that many specimens are cut which are white when looked at transversely, but having a bit of fine blue tint on the under point. Then there is the red sapphire, or Ceylon ruby. It is valued as highly as the finest Burmese rubies. Those most highly prized are of rich pigeon blood or rose red color.

"Some very fine sapphires have been found in Montana during the past ten years. The American gems are light blue, blue green, green and pink, but the deep blue and red stones, which are chiefly in demand as jewels, have so far never been discovered in any part of this country."—Washington Star.

The Rooster Was Game.

A Rockland young man is the owner of a smart rooster and has long entertained suspicion that the bird might have inherited gamy characteristics from some long forgotten ancestor. To apply this theory in an actual test he went home the other night, surreptitiously conveyed the parlor mirror into the hen pen and held it before the gaze of the wondering rooster.

The young man was not kept long in suspense as to the bird's fighting qualities. After a brief, incredulous glance at the proud reflection in the glass the rooster descended upon the object with spurs set and wrath gleaming from each beadlike eye. There were a crash, a smash and a clatter, and when the dust and feathers cleared away the young sportsman stood, a dismayed spectator, in the center of a pile of ruins formed of broken mirror, slats and pulverized plate glass.

He is now satisfied with the rooster, but how he squared himself about the broken mirror is not known.—Bangor Whig and Courier.

It Has Been Done.

"I should think not," replied Cumso. "But see how the jokers have changed George Washington's cherry tree into a chestnut."—Harper's Bazar.

THE NEW TELEPHONES.

INTENDING USERS SHOULD NOTIFY THE COMPANY.

At Once And So Assist in Prompt Service By the Columbiana County Company.

Editor News Review, East Liverpool, O.

Dear Sir—Please say to the patrons of your paper and the citizens in general that it is the desire of the Columbiana County Telephone company that all who contemplate using the new telephone make their wants known as soon as possible, so that we may know what to prepare for and have them promptly served, as it is impossible for the company to put phones in promptly after they have finished their general construction and called their men away to other places. People are apt to think that it is an easy matter for the company to put in a phone most any day when the order is once given, but in fact this is not true. It must be remembered that we are putting in hundreds of phones all over the county, and that we try to finish one town as nearly as we can before going to another, and it is unreasonable to subscribe for a telephone the next day after our men have left town and demand that it be put in that day; hence this request. We shall try and serve all patrons promptly with a better service than they have ever had, and at a lower price than they have ever paid or can ever expect to have, if they will notify us in time.

Yours respectfully,
S. C. THAYER,

Easy to Beat Hotels.

"Hotel men give out that they warn each other by circulars about deadbeats," said the slick looking man with the high hat, "but don't you let that stop you if you want to live high for a week. Few men like to publish the fact that they have been done up. It's the easiest thing in the world to beat a first class hotel. All you want is a good suit of clothes and plenty of cheek. A grip with a few shirts and collars is as good as a trunk.

"You drive up in style; you register to get the best room in the house; you bulldoze the clerks and threaten the servants. A checkbook is a good thing to show, but you pay for nothing. You talk in a loud voice, you make plenty of kicks, and you order the best wines for dinner. Lands, but the whole staff of the house will fall over each other to make it pleasant for you! You don't pay the first week's bill. On the contrary, you are indignant and demand an apology. When the second week is due, your drafts have not come.

"You will be worked out of the house, but with gentleness and apologies. They don't want a row, and they don't want notoriety. You'll be forgiven if you'll only go, and if you take up your quarters for the next two weeks right across the street no one from the hotel will give you away. When a man beats us, we like to see him beat our neighbor, you know. It's nice and genteel work, with no kicks or hard times, and there is always room for one more in the profession."—Detroit Journal.

Food Plants.

A wonderful reserve fund for the human appetite is to be found in the vegetable diet of the Klamath Indians. A novel variety of food, forming a menu unknown to the civilized, is offered in the pulp of the great yellow water lily, which is converted into a farinaceous food; in the weed known as goosefoot, which bears a black seed that is ground up for loaves and cakes, and in the arrowhead, which in the fall develops a starchy white tuber at the end of the roots.

New stripe worsed suits, Joseph Bros.' received this week are the handsomest line you will see worn for the coming season.

ST. CLAIR WENT REPUBLICAN.

East Palestine, April 3.—(Special.)—H. E. Bower, the saloonist who flouted his nomination for mayor on the Republican ticket in the faces of the local option majority of East Palestine, adding this insult to the injury they smarted under in his successful appeal to the circuit court against Mayor Lyon's sentence upon him for delivering liquor in the village from his saloon across the village line, met a stunning rebuke at the polls yesterday. He was the only Republican on the ticket who was defeated. Adolph Mascher, the Democratic nominee, a village business man, polled 275 votes to 266 for Bower. At the Republican primaries Bower got 193 to 158 for Mayor Lyon, whom he defeated for renomination. All the rest of the Republican ticket received comfortable majorities yesterday. There was a very large vote out.

DENNIS RE-ELECTED.

Wellsville, April 3.—(Special.)—Mayor Dennis, Democrat, was re-elected yesterday. He had 708 to 527 for J. C. Catlett, Republican. The balance of the Republican ticket won. The liquor issue is said to have figured largely in the mayor fight.

Salem, April 3.—(Special.)—Mayor Paul Huxley, Republican, was re-elected yesterday by 1,076 votes to 691 for John Scott, Democratic nominee. For solicitor, Metzgar, Republican, had 944, A. W. Taylor 809. The entire Republican ticket won.

LISBON'S VOTE.

IN ST. CLAIR TOWNSHIP

It's a cold day when St. Clair township cannot turn up morning after election with a tie vote for some office. Every election held there since November has had a tie. The result yesterday was: Township clerk, J. J. Ansley, R., 110; Mehaffey, D., 106; township trustee, Clapsaddle, D., 125; Miller, R., 92; treasurer, Huston, R., 108; Wright, D., 104; assessor, Orr, D., 125; Saint, R., 92; constable, Faulk, R., 106; Smith, D., 106.

How Far Apart Did They Live?

"I was at the capitol one day," said a Boston lawyer, "in attendance upon a committee having in charge a bill in which my clients are interested. On the long, leather covered settee near me two southern members were smoking and conversing. The following words were jotted down by me verbatim:

"'Majah, I was down among youh people last summer, and I wanted to find Gen'al Blood's plantation, but I got off my road. Where does he live from youh place, majah?'

"'Then that must be the reason I missed it. I went too far around the river bend.'

"Now, these gentlemen understood each other beyond a doubt. But what I want to know is, how many miles was it from the major's plantation to the general's? And for the life of me I can't solve the question. It haunted me so that I stumbled two or three times when subsequently making my argument before the committee, of which these two members formed a part."—Washington Star.

Sapphires Not All Blue.

"It is commonly believed that the sapphire is known only as a gem of a rich velvety blue in color," observed an experienced dealer in precious stones to the writer the other day. "As a matter of fact, the sapphire occurs in various hues. In Ceylon, for instance, where the finest specimens of this gem are found, it ranges from the soft velvety blue to the peacock blue, graduated in the latter to an almost faultless white. It also occurs in whites, greens and yellows, the latter shade being known as the oriental topaz and the green the oriental emerald.

"The white sapphires are often found clouded or streaked with blue, so that many specimens are cut which are white when looked at transversely, but having a bit of fine blue tint on the under point. Then there is the red sapphire, or Ceylon ruby. It is valued as highly as the finest Burmese rubies. Those most highly prized are of rich pigeon blood or rose red color.

"Some very fine sapphires have been found in Montana during the past ten years. The American gems are light blue, blue green, green and pink, but the deep blue and red stones, which are chiefly in demand as jewels, have so far never been discovered in any part of this country."—Washington Star.

The Rooster Was Game.

A Rockland young man is the owner of a smart rooster and has long entertained suspicion that the bird might have inherited game characteristics from some long forgotten ancestor. To apply this theory in an actual test he went home the other night, surreptitiously conveyed the parlor mirror into the hen pen and held it before the gaze of the wondering rooster.

The young man was not kept long in suspense as to the bird's fighting qualities. After a brief, incredulous glance at the proud reflection in the glass the rooster descended upon the object with spurs set and wrath gleaming from each beadlike eye. There were a crash, a smash and a clatter, and when the dust and feathers cleared away the young sportsman stood, a dismayed spectator, in the center of a pile of ruins formed of broken mirror, slats and pulverized plate glass.

He is now satisfied with the rooster, but how he squared himself about the broken mirror is not known.—Bangor Whig and Courier.

THE NEW TELEPHONES.

INTENDING USERS SHOULD NOTIFY THE COMPANY.

At Once And So Assist in Prompt Service By the Columbiana County Company.

Editor News Review, East Liverpool, O.

Dear Sir—Please say to the patrons of your paper and the citizens in general that it is the desire of the Columbiana County Telephone company that all who contemplate using the new telephone make their wants known as soon as possible, so that we may know what to prepare for and have them promptly served, as it is impossible for the company to put phones in promptly after they have finished their general construction and called their men away to other places. People are apt to think that it is an easy matter for the company to put in a phone most any day when the order is once given, but in fact this is not true. It must be remembered that we are putting in hundreds of phones all over the county, and that we try to finish one town as nearly as we can before going to another, and it is unreasonable to subscribe for a telephone the next day after our men have left town and demand that it be put in that day; hence this request. We shall try and serve all patrons promptly with a better service than they have ever had, and at a lower price than they have ever paid or can ever expect to have, if they will notify us in time.

Yours respectfully,
S. C. THAYER,

Easy to Beat Hotels.

"Hotel men give out that they warn each other by circulars about deadbeats," said the slick looking man with the high hat, "but don't you let that stop you if you want to live high for a week. Few men like to publish the fact that they have been done up. It's the easiest thing in the world to beat a first class hotel. All you want is a good suit of clothes and plenty of check. A grip with a few shirts and collars is as good as a trunk.

"You drive up in style; you register to get the best room in the house; you bulldoze the clerks and threaten the servants. A checkbook is a good thing to show, but you pay for nothing. You talk in a loud voice, you make plenty of kicks, and you order the best wines for dinner. Lands, but the whole staff of the house will fall over each other to make it pleasant for you! You don't pay the first week's bill. On the contrary, you are indignant and demand an apology. When the second week is due, your drafts have not come.

"You will be worked out of the house, but with gentleness and apologies. They don't want a row, and they don't want notoriety. You'll be forgiven if you'll only go, and if you take up your quarters for the next two weeks right across the street no one from the hotel will give you away. When a man beats us, we like to see him beat our neighbor, you know. It's nice and genteel work, with no kicks or hard times, and there is always room for one more in the profession."—Detroit Journal.

Food Plants.

A wonderful reserve fund for the human appetite is to be found in the vegetable diet of the Klamath Indians. A novel variety of food, forming a menu unknown to the civilized, is offered in the pulp of the great yellow water lily, which is converted into a farinaceous food; in the weed known as goosefoot, which bears a black seed that is ground up for loaves and cakes, and in the arrowhead, which in the fall develops a starchy white tuber at the end of the roots.

New stripe worsed suits, Joseph Bros.' received this week are the handsomest line you will see worn for the coming season.

WILLIAM C. DAVIDSON.

The Mayor-Elect is Distinctively a Home Man and Was Born and Raised Here.

William C. Davidson, who was elected mayor of East Liverpool yesterday by the largest majority ever given a candidate for that office, is distinctively a home man. He is 38 years of age and was born in this city October 16, 1861, in a little brick house which stood on a lot directly opposite from where the Cleveland & Pittsburg passenger station now stands. He is a son of the late A. M. Davidson, who, before his death was for years one of the most prominent business men of the city. The mayor-elect has spent his whole life in this city, and this was his first break into politics. He is known to almost every person in the city and is very popular with all classes of people.

When seen this morning he stated that he would follow the usual custom in regard to taking his seat as mayor of the city. He remarked that he had taken no action in regard to the police appointments and didn't know anything about a caucus, as being elected mayor was a new thing to him. He remarked, however, that he expected to follow the usual custom in regard to the matter.

Corned Salt Meats.

The indigestible properties of boiled ham, corned beef and other salt meats may, according to Mrs. Parloa, the cooking expert, be eliminated if the meat is sufficiently boiled. The salt toughens the fibers, and it takes persistent boiling to overcome this. The time allowed for a ten pound piece is five hours, but as the pieces are apt to be thick rather than long one of half this weight would need about the same amount of time. The meat should be partly cooled in the water in which it is boiled.

DIME NOVEL DETECTIVE.

ARCHIE WALSH WAS ARRESTED IN CLEVELAND.

Young Walsh is a son of J. C. Walsh, of Sixth street. He told a number of his young friends a few days ago that he intended to take a trip soon, but did not say where he intended to go. Walsh left for Cleveland last night, and is expected home with the boy this evening

The following appeared in a Cleveland paper this morning:

"A youthful would-be imitator of the great Sherlock Holmes came to grief at the hands of the police last evening, in the person of Archie Walsh, 16 years old, of East Liverpool, O., who was arrested on the charge of being a suspicious person, by Patrolmen Bruder and Fitzgerald.

"The officers found Walsh loitering in the hall of the Mohawk building, and, after questioning him decided to take him to the police station. He gave his name and said his home is in East Liverpool. He said that he left home about three weeks ago.

"The police say that they have information in their possession which leads them to believe that the boy stole considerable money from his father and left home. A letter found in his possession was addressed to a detective agency in Chicago. In it Walsh said he would like to be engaged to do work. He told them that he could dye his hair any color wanted, could disguise himself in any manner in two minutes, and, in fact, was a veritable sleuth. In the letter he told them his real name, but cautioned them to address all letters to him as 'Jack Diamond,' care of the American house.

"The police say that since he has been in the city he has spent $114 for new clothes, a diamond ring, a watch and chain and a revolver. He is a bright appearing boy, and has an uncle living on St. Clair street At the central police station he registered as living at the American house, and gave his occupation as that of waiter. The police are holding him until his father can be communicated with."

MAYOR BOUGH

Mayor Bough, who was defeated yesterday, has been in politics for several years, and has made the race for mayor four times. The defeat yesterday was the greatest ever administered to him. In 1894 he was a candidate against Gilbert and was defeated by 180 votes, the total being Gilbert 825, Bough 645. In 1896 he was again a candidate against Gilbert and this time he was defeated by 93 votes, Gilbert receiving 1,002, while he got 909. In 1898 he was again a candidate against Gilbert, and this time he was successful in defeating Gilbert 237 votes, Bough receiving 1,538, while Gilbert received 1,301.

The mayor took the defeat of yesterday with a good spirit, and when asked in regard to the matter stated that he certainly had many warm friends in the city and he was proud of his vote. He also stated that he would retire from office next Tuesday evening, when he would present his monthly and annual reports to council.

A Few Things of Interest in Regard to the Election Held Yesterday.

It is asserted that the Davidson vote made its appearance in the afternoon. It arrived on time.

A prominent boss potter this morning remarked that he thought it was a shame that there was 162 Democrats inthe city.

A large flag in the Diamond was run up this morning in honor of the occasion and the pump was started.

Yesterday afternoon a fellow named Hagerty asked to vote at the first precinct of the Third ward. George H. Owen asked him if he had been here a year and wanted him to take oath to it. He refused and Owen asked him if he would affirm. He replied "I am no farmer, I am a bricklayer." He went out without voting.

The interest will now center on the primary to be held in Stark county next Saturday.

There was not an election day arrest.

The second precinct of the Fourth ward, as usual, had some excitement. A drunken individual tried to run the place. An officer was called, but he escaped.

Barnum's Excuse.

P. T. Barnum's propensity for practical joking began early to assert itself. Once a man was on trial in a local court for a small misdemeanor. Learning that he had no money to hire a lawyer, Barnum offered to conduct his defense. With great solemnity he made a lengthy plea in which he virtually accused his client of being guilty of half the crimes on the calendar, ending with a recommendation to the mercy of the court on the ground of unsound mind.

The man, though escaping with a merely nominal sentence, was furious at the trick that had been played on him. He was finally appeased by Barnum's explanation that he had prepared a defense for two different clients and had in his case delivered the wrong plea.—Maitland Leroy Osborne in National Magazine.

Nassau's Big Tree.

In Nassau, the capital city of the Bahama islands, they say "the tree in the public square"—not the trees. Now the public square of Nassau is quite as large as that of most cities of the size, but there is only one tree in it, and that tree literally fills the square and spreads its shade over all the public buildings in the neighborhood. For it is the largest tree in the world at its base, although it is hardly taller than a three story house. It is variously known as a ceiba or a silk cotton tree, but the people of the low islands of the West Indies call it the hurricane tree; for no matter how hard the wind blows it cannot disturb the mighty buttressed trunk of the ceiba.

Its trunk throws out great curving, windlike braces, some of them 20 feet wide and nearly as high. These extend into the ground on all sides and brace the tree against all attack, while the great branches spread a thick shade overhead. In the tropic sunshine of midsummer, hundreds, even thousands, of people may gather in the cool of its shadow. No one knows how old the great tree is, but it must have been growing hundreds, if not thousands, of years. A very old picture in the library at Nassau shows the tree as big as it is at present, and even the oldest negro in the island cannot remember when it was a bit smaller.—Washington Post.

Tom Corwin's Ready Wit.

"Gentlemen, my honored opponent himself, while he preaches advocacy of home industry, has a carriage at home which he got in England; had it shipped across the water to him. How is that for supporting home industry and labor?"

When Corwin came to the stand, he made a great show of embarrassment. He stammered and began slowly:

"Well, gentlemen, you have heard what my friend Mr. Brough has to say about my carriage. I plead guilty to the charge, and I have only two things to say in my defense. The first is that the carriage came to me from an English ancestor as an heirloom, and I had to take it. Again, I have not used it for seven years, and it has been standing in my back yard all that time, and the chickens have converted it into a roost. Now, gentlemen," with a steady look at Brough, "I have nothing further to say in my defense, but I would like to know how Brough knows anything about my carriage if he has not been visiting my henroost!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Mile a Minute Down the Alps.

The spot in the Swiss Alps that attracts the winter sportsmen of Europe is the Cresta run, at St. Moritz, which is just one mile in length. The tobogganing season here begins about the middle of November, when the first snow falls. The condition of the run is not left to chance, but the slide is prepared under the direction of a committee. Swiss toboggans in contrast to the Canadian ones, made entirely of wood, are raised on runners shod with iron or steel. The expert rider lies prone upon the toboggan, head foremost, both hands grasping the framework at the sides and both feet employed in steering. Iron spikes are secured to the toes of the boots, and by trailing one or the other foot along the ground the big sled may be guided. But as this fashion of steering tends to diminish the speed the most skilled riders [illegible] as possible and [illegible] upon shifting the position. Though the [illegible] is but a mile in length, the whole distance may be covered in 70 seconds. At the steepest point a mile a minute is made.

An Unwelcome Visitor.

While camped in the Wallapai mountains recently there came to my camp from off the Santa Fe Pacific an English overland tourist, and, after passing the usual salutations and greetings, the stranger proposed to join the desert express train of burros and try his luck prospecting. The first camp was made at Maggie Springs, where stood an old miner's cabin. In the morning he proposed to help cook breakfast and built a rousing fire in the old fireplace of the cabin and started to fry the bacon. All at once a startled expression came from the embryo cook, and, turning quickly, I discovered a large king snake sizzling in the frying pan. The chimney getting hot had dislodged his snakeship, and down he came into the hot grease.

Nassau's Big Tree.

In Nassau, the capital city of the Bahama islands, they say "the tree in the public square"—not the trees. Now the public square of Nassau is quite as large as that of most cities of the size, but there is only one tree in it, and that tree literally fills the square and spreads its shade over all the public buildings in the neighborhood. For it is the largest tree in the world at its base, although it is hardly taller than a three story house. It is variously known as a ceiba or a silk cotton tree, but the people of the low islands of the West Indies call it the hurricane tree; for no matter how hard the wind blows it cannot disturb the mighty, buttressed trunk of the ceiba.

Its trunk throws out great curving, windlike braces, some of them 20 feet wide and nearly as high. These extend into the ground on all sides and brace the tree against all attack, while the great branches spread a thick shade overhead. In the tropic sunshine of midsummer, hundreds, even thousands, of people may gather in the cool of its shadow. No one knows how old the great tree is, but it must have been growing hundreds, if not thousands, of years. A very old picture in the library at Nassau shows the tree as big as it is at present, and even the oldest negro in the island cannot remember when it was a bit smaller.—Washington Post.

Tom Corwin's Ready Wit.

"Gentlemen, my honored opponent himself, while he preaches advocacy of home industry, has a carriage at home which he got in England; had it shipped across the water to him. How is that for supporting home industry and labor?"

When Corwin came to the stand, he made a great show of embarrassment. He stammered and began slowly:

"Well, gentlemen, you have heard what my friend Mr. Brough has to say about my carriage. I plead guilty to the charge, and I have only two things to say in my defense. The first is that the carriage came to me from an English ancestor as an heirloom, and I had to take it. Again, I have not used it for seven years, and it has been standing in my back yard all that time, and the chickens have converted it into a roost. Now, gentlemen," with a steady look at Brough, "I have nothing further to say in my defense, but I would like to know how Brough knows anything about my carriage if he has not been visiting my henroost!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Mile a Minute Down the Alps.

The spot in the Swiss Alps that attracts the winter sportsmen of Europe is the Cresta run, at St. Moritz, which is just one mile in length. The tobogganing season here begins about the middle of November, when the first snow falls. The condition of the run is not left to chance, but the slide is prepared under the direction of a committee. Swiss toboggans in contrast to the Canadian ones, made entirely of wood, are raised on runners shod with iron or steel. The expert rider lies prone upon the toboggan, head foremost, both hands grasping the framework at the sides and both feet employed in steering. Iron spikes are secured to the toes of the boots, and by trailing one or the other foot along the ground the big sled may be guided. But as this fashion of steering tends to diminish the speed the most skilled [illegible] as possible [illegible] shifting the position. Though the [illegible] is but one mile in length, the whole distance may be covered in 70 seconds. At the steepest point a mile a minute is made.

An Unwelcome Visitor.

While camped in the Wallapai mountains recently there came to my camp from off the Santa Fe Pacific an English overland tourist, and, after passing the usual salutations and greetings, the stranger proposed to join the desert express train of burros and try his luck prospecting. The first camp was made at Maggie Springs, where stood an old miner's cabin. In the morning he proposed to help cook breakfast and built a rousing fire in the old fireplace of the cabin and started to fry the bacon. All at once a startled expression came from the embryo cook, and, turning quickly, I discovered a large king snake sizzling in the frying pan. The chimney getting hot had dislodged his snakeship, and down he came into the hot grease.

Rev. Dr. Hillis' Advice to the Presbyterian Church.

USE THAT TIME SAVING SOULS.

Does Not Believe In Foreordination—Refuses to Preach Presbyterianism With That In the Creed—Asked to Be Demitted From the Ministry.

CHICAGO, April 3.—The resignation of Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, from the Chicago presbytery, and the request that he be allowed to demit from the Presbyterian church, was placed before the annual meeting of the Chicago presbytery No action will be taken on the matter for two weeks, the committee to which Dr. Hillis' letter of resignation was referred for consideration requesting that much time on account of the many important interests involved, and being unwilling to take hasty action on a matter so important to the Presbyterian church.

Dr. Hillis' resignation was in the form of a letter to Dr. W. C. Gray, editor of The Interior, and a personal friend of the Brooklyn pastor, and when the aged divine stepped upon the platform to present the letter to the Chicago presbytery, the auditorium of Olivet Memorial church, in which the meeting was held, was crowded to the doors, nearly every Presbyterian minister in Chicago being present.

Rev. Dr. Hillis said in part:

I regret exceedingly that my former instructors have thought one of their students lacking in courtesy and respect for those to whom I am confessedly under obligation.

DR. NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS.

through the lecture room and library. I can but think, however, that the scope, content and drift of my sermon were entirely misapprehended. I have long felt that our easy going, pleasure loving generation is in danger of losing its moral stamina, and the sturdy fidelity of conviction that was the glory of our puritan ancestors. Having often plied men with motives of self interest, reason and love, in the sermon on the automatic judgment seat in man, I appealed to the sense of justice and righteousness.

Failing to find a sufficient rational basis for penalty and alarm in the old Calvinistic theology, I did find a basis for fearing the penalties of transgression in reason and memory, in judgment and conscience. The sermon sounds the note of warning and alarm. It capitalizes righteousness and not pleasure as the keynote of character. By every possible motive I urged men to turn from their transgressions lest they fall under the penalties of the automatic judgment seat in man as well as the condemnation of God. In passing I spoke of the fragmentary theories of Dante, of Michael Angelo, of Jonathan Edwards and our confession of faith.

Hitherto I have encouraged myself in the hope and belief that nine-tenths of our members and most of our pastors rejected this chapter in the confession. In uniting with the presbytery I subscribed to the confession "as containing the system of doctrine," a phrase unfortunately omitted in my sermon of last Sunday.

It now seems that this qualification "as containing the system of doctrine" does not permit one to deny this doctrine of reprobation. One of my former professors says I have "coldly, clearly and insolently denounced the doctrines of the faith," and, therefore, "can not consistently remain in the church." For years, in common with many other preachers, I have been apologizing for our creed, and saying that while our confession of faith says "that some men and angels are foreordained to everlasting death," that nobody believed it.

Nevertheless, during these years, I have been disturbed by the thought that nothing lowers the moral sense of the community like the keeping on statute books laws that are daily disobeyed and laughed at. And what shall be said of the injury to our children and youth of preserving intact a creed that is accepted by clerical instructors one day and denied by our ministers the next? During the past years I labored in season and out of season with voice and pen to secure a revision of the confession that we might be clear before the world. But it now seems that some teachers in our theological seminaries hold to the doctrine of reprobation, teach it, love it, count it an integral part of our system and urge that if I can not accept it, I must withdraw from the church.

In fulfilling their request, I now discern that I have for years been in a false position, and desire to set myself right.

The views I now hold and teach I have held and taught during my pastorates of the First Presbyterian church, at Evanston, and the Central church, of Chicago. What little light I have had has not been under a bushel. I have not believed one thing secretly and taught another openly. Holding back nothing, I have tried to give the light as the light has gone forth from God's word to me. But I now see that I have grieved and disturbed my brethren. The happiness and welfare of no one man should weigh for a moment against the welfare of all. As I am no longer a Calvinist in the old sense of the term, and could not today accept the unrevised confession of faith, I have decided to demit my ministry in the Presbyterian church and, beginning anew, to unite with some other body on the statement of my present belief

In going out from you, less some misunderstand my action, I wish to reaffirm my faith in what is called the great fundamental principles of Christianity. As never before I believe in God the Father, Maker of Heaven and Earth, and in His loving providence, in His all-helpful, all-comforting, all-guiding and regenerating spirit; in Jesus Christ, the world's Savior and Redeemer, and our way and truth and life; in man made in the image of God, and despite his sinfulness and ignorance he is sincerely and truthfully invited to come into the likeness to his father. I believe that what Christ was and did, and suffered for a few men through three and thirty years, God is, and does and suffers for all men, in all worlds through all ages. If the new scholarship has destroyed my old view of the Bible, as never before I believe the Bible to be the word of God, a light to my feet and a lamp to my path. After years of mental conflict and doubt, I have bought these faiths at a great price.

Nothing can wrest them from me. For me the principles of evangelical Christianity seem as firmly fixed as mountains and stars. So far, also, from loving the Christian church and the Christian ministry less, these views have strengthened my love until it has become an all-consuming passion. There are hours when I look out upon the multitudes going stumbling, blundering, weeping, falling, sinning and dying, when it seems to me I would die a thousand deaths to be permitted to give a cup of cold water only to one of Christ's little ones, or light one beacon fire to guide the pilgrim host struggling through the desert. And when I think of the poor in our tenement houses, of the prodigal sons and daughters in the streets of our great cities, upon men whose business it is to degrade their fellows, I see that what I once hoped to do for my fellows through schemes of social reform and philanthropy, can only be done by the influence of Jesus Christ, and His spirit manifested in His disciples who bear the burdens and sorrows of the people. For there is no dynamic in reform save the cross of Jesus Christ.

Of late, I have felt that the church was approaching a great crisis and that while we have been discussing the nature of inspiration and petty critical problems, the great world, weary and broken hearted and choked with fog and mist, have been asking whether or not there is a personal God; and while we have been trying each other for heresy, the multitudes have been turning away from the threshold of the Christian church to wander in the darkness and storm

At the conclusion of the reading of the letter a motion to refer it to a committee of three for consideration was adopted, and Dr. J. G. K. McClure, president of Lake Forest university; Dr. William R. Notman, of the Fourth church, and Dr. W. J. Chichester, of the First church, were named, Dr. Herrick Johnson, president of McCormick Theological seminary, who had been named, withdrawing on the ground that he had already expressed his opinion in favor of the acceptance of Dr. Hillis' resignation. The committee spent some time in discussing the letter, and finally decided to ask for two weeks' time in which to consider the matter before making any recommendation to the presbytery, and the request was granted by a unanimous vote.

Although none of the members of the committee would express an opinion as to the probable recommendation to be made, many of the ministers present stated they did not favor allowing Dr. Hillis to demit, as his opinions on certain Presbyterian doctrines were not confined to himself and that, therefore, the erasure of his name from the rolls of the Presbyterian church would be opposed. Such action, they stated, would be regarded in a way as favorable to Dr. Hillis, as it would allow him to become a preacher of the Congregationrl church without doctrinal examination.

EXISTENCE OF WAR FORMALLY RECOGNIZED.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Secretary Root stated that Major George O. Kirkman, Forty-ninth volunteer infantry, is no longer in the service of the United States, by the approval of General Otis. The approval of the president is unnecessary. Kirkman was accused of being drunk on the transport Liverpool, on the voyage from San Francisco to Manila. Private advices also charged him with affronting Archbishop Chapelle, who was one of the passengers.

The construction given by the war department to General Otis' action in this case commits the department, it is believed, to a formal recognition of the existence of war in the Philippines. Article 106 of the articles of war expressly provides that the sentence of dismissal, in the case of an officer, shall not be carried out "in time of peace," except on the approval of the president of the United States.

PITTSBURG, April 3.—Twenty thousand mineworkers struck in the Pittsburg district, principall through misnnderstanding over the weight standard.

BOTH PARTIES GAINED.

Republicans' Increases Apparently Largest In Ohio.

DEMOCRATS WERE INDIFFERENT.

Then It Is Believed the Republicans Succeeded In Healing More of Factional Differences Than Did the Democrats. Results In Some Places.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—A summary of the results of tha municipal and township elections in Ohio indicate more Republican than Democratic gains, but no special cause for it is assigned, except that the Republican factions that have been fighting for years have evidently been getting together, and that the Democrats have shown more indifference than usual. This applies especially to the larger cities, but there have been Republican gains, according to the returns from rural districts and interior towns, that are not thus accounted for.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—The Republicans scored a success over the fusionists at the election here for all the city offices. They also have all members of the new board of public service for three years, which controls everything except the police and fire departments The board of legislation stands, 24 Republicans and 7 Democrats, and the board of education 24 Republicans and 4 Democrats.

Colonel Julius Fleischman, a millionaire Hebrew, is a very close friend to Senator Hanna, who is said to have requested the young man to make the race. He was elected by over 8,500 plurality over State Senator Alfred M. Cohen, the fusion candidate, together with the full Republican city ticket. There were six arrests for illegal voting.

COLUMBUS, April 3.—Rev. Washington Gladden, the eminent congregational clergyman, was elected to the city council, from the Seventh ward, defeating C. E. Miles, Republican, by 76 votes, out of a total of 1,800 cast. Dr. Gladden ran as an Independent candidate, though indorsed by the Democrats at their caucus.

NEWARK, O., April 3.—Newark went Democratic, the Democrats electing the whole city ticket, seven of the eight councilmen and three members of the board of education. For mayor Herbert Atherton, Dem., had 305 plurality.

TOLEDO, O., April 3.—The Republican city ticket was elected by about 2,000, but the Democratic gains in the council will probably give its control to that party. James Melvin is elected to the non-partisan school board, and the other member elected with him is probably John W. Dowd.

COLUMBUS, April 3.—Complete returns of election show that N. W. Dick, Dem., has been elected police judge over M. B. Darnhart, Rep., by 508 votes. The total vote was 22,140. Last spring the Republicans elected a mayor by about 1,500. The council stands 10 Republicans, 7 Democrats and 2 Independents. The proposition to issue $350,000 bonds for a market house was defeated. The franchise granted to the Federal Gas company was ratified.

DAYTON, O., April 3.—The election here, with a comparatively light vote, was a walkover for J. R. Lindmuth, Democratic candidate for mayor, by a majority of about 3,000.

WOOSTER, O., April 3.—The Democrats elect four members of the council; Republicans, one. The township is Democratic by 75 majority. There is no political change of officials.

MANSFIELD, O., April 3.—The Democrats here elected a waterworks trustee and justice of the peace. The council is Democratic and the school board, which has been Republican for years, is a tie.

MASSILLON, O., April 3.—The Republican mayor was elected by a large majority. The council is a tie, a gain of one for the Democrats. The other municipal officers broke even.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 3.—The Republicans carried this city, electing Frank Brown mayor by a majority of about 1,000; C. J. Mathew, solicitor, and W. A. Beecher, trustee of waterworks, completely revolutionizing the municipal administration, which for the past four years has been Democratic. The council continues Republican by 2 majority, as does the board of education.

HAMILTON, O., April 3.—The Democrats elected the entire city ticket by a majority of about 900, a falling off of about 100.

ZANESVILLE, O., April 3.—The result of this city is mixed. The Republicans elect the street commissioner and constables, while the Democrats get the water works trustee, cemetery trustee and justice.

CANTON, O., April 3.—The Republicans elected their entire city ticket by majorities ranging from 800 to 1,200. The big pluralities were on members of the school board, in which the women participated. The Republicans elected four out of seven councilmen. The Republicans get control of the school board, which last year was unanimously Democratic.

INFERNAL MACHINE SENT TO GEO. B. COX.

Failed to Explode, Owing to Rain Having Wet the Matches—He Had Heard of a Plot.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—An attempt was made to blow up George B. Cox, the Republican boss, at his home in Clifton.

The servant found a small wooden box on the porch and handed it to Mrs. Cox. She opened the sliding lid, which revealed a stick of carefully arranged dynamite.

WEBSTER DAVIS RESIGNS HIS SECRETARYSHIP.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The formal resignation of Webster Davis as assistant secretary of the interior was sent to the president through his private secretary. At the White House no statement was obtainable concerning the resignation other than the fact that it had been received, and the officials declined to say whether it would be accepted.

Mr. Davis decided to resign because of the acceptance of an invitation to deliver a lecture on the South African war, and he felt that as an official he could not express his views with such freedom as he could as a private citizen. The invitation was extended by non-partisan citizens of Washington and was not inspired in any way by persons directly connected with Boer interests.

Mr. Davis said in part:

"It is purely a matter of sympathy on my part. I went to South Africa unprejudiced, visited both armies, saw much of the British soldiers and people, and also much of the Boers. After seeing what I did, I made up my mind that the cause of the Boers was just.

"When I entered the train at Pretoria, on my return home, fully 2,000 men and women, mostly women, whose husbands and fathers and sons were at the front, gathered at the station to bid me goodby, and as the tears rolled down many of thir faces, they made the last request of me that I do everything within my power upon my return home to let the American people know of their exact condition; to let them know how they had been abused and outrageously misrepresented by the English.

"The English correspondents have no trouble in getting their dispatches over the cable lines, as they are controlled absolutely by the British, while it is impossible for information regarding the situation from the Boers' standpoint to reach the American people. If I did not, as a free American, decide to listen to their appeals, my conscience would burn and the faces of those suffering people, as brave and as noble as God ever let live in any land, would haunt me as long as I live.

"I am, therefore, determined to do everything in my humble way to assist them. Their cause is just and in God is their trust, and in the light of the past history of the American people who went through the same struggle, I believe the Boers will win."

Mr. Davis was asked what course he would have the people of this country pursue in order to assist the Boers. He replied: "Do anything and everything within their power, and let Great Britain and the world know that the sympathies of the American people are not with Great Britain, but with the Boers and in the interests of humanity and civilization.

"We should let the world know that such an unholy war should stop, and stop at once."

Dr. Barbarin Dead.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Dr. Francis St. Clair Barbarin, for 27 years the curator of the Corcoran art gallery here, died at his home in Georgetown. He was born in Newport, R. I., 67 years ago.

Two Officers Escaped.

The longest canal in the world is the Erie, in New York, extending from Albany to Buffalo, a distance of 381 miles. The cost of construction was $52,540,800.

Rev. Dr. Hillis' Advice to the Presbyterian Church.

USE THAT TIME SAVING SOULS.

Does Not Believe In Foreordination Refuses to Preach Presbyterianism With That In the Creed—Asked to Be Demitted From the Ministry.

CHICAGO, April 3.—The resignation of Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, from the Chicago presbytery, and the request that he be allowed to demit from the Presbyterian church, was placed before the annual meeting of the Chicago presbytery No action will be taken on the matter for two weeks, the committee to which Dr. Hillis' letter of resignation was referred for consideration requesting that much time on account of the many important interests involved, and being unwilling to take hasty action on a matter so important to the Presbyterian church.

Dr. Hillis' resignation was in the form of a letter to Dr. W. C. Gray, editor of The Interior, and a personal friend of the Brooklyn pastor, and when the aged divine stepped upon the platform to present the letter to the Chicago presbytery, the auditorium of Olivet Memorial church, in which the meeting was held, was crowded to the doors, nearly every Presbyterian minister in Chicago being present.

Rev. Dr. Hillis said in part:

I regret exceedingly that my former instructors have thought one of their students lacking in courtesy and respect for those to whom I am confessedly under obligation,

through the lecture room and library. I can but think, however, that the scope, content and drift of my sermon were entirely misapprehended. I have long felt that our easy going, pleasure loving generation is in danger of losing its moral stamina, and the sturdy fidelity of conviction that was the glory of our puritan ancestors. Having often plied men with motives of self interest, reason and love, in the sermon on the automatic judgment seat in man, I appealed to the sense of justice and righteousness.

Failing to find a sufficient rational basis for penalty and alarm in the old Calvinistic theology, I did find a basis for fearing the penalties of transgression in reason and memory, in judgment and conscience. The sermon sounds the note of warning and alarm. It capitalizes righteousness and not pleasure as the keynote of character. By every possible motive I urged men to turn from their transgressions lest they fall under the penalties of the automatic judgment seat in man as well as the condemnation of God. In passing I spoke of the fragmentary theories of Dante, of Michael Angelo, of Jonathan Edwards and our confession of faith.

Hitherto I have encouraged myself in the hope and belief that nine-tenths of our members and most of our pastors rejected this chapter in the confession. In uniting with the presbytery I subscribed to the confession "as containing the system of doctrine," a phrase unfortunately omitted in my sermon of last Sunday.

It now seems that this qualification "as containing the system of doctrine" does not permit one to deny this doctrine of reprobation. One of my former professors says I have "coldly, clearly and insolently denounced the doctrines of the faith," and, therefore, "can not consistently remain in the church." For years, in common with many other preachers, I have been apologizing for our creed, and saying that while our confession of faith says "that some men and angels are foreordained to everlasting death," that nobody believed it.

Nevertheless, during these years, I have been disturbed by the thought that nothing lowers the moral sense of the community like the keeping on statute books laws that are daily disobeyed and laughed at. And what shall be said of the injury to our children and youth of preserving intact a creed that is accepted by clerical instructors one day and denied by our ministers the next? During the past years I labored in season and out of season with voice and pen to secure a revision of the confession that we might be clear before the world. But it now seems that some teachers in our theological seminaries hold to the doctrine of reprobation, teach it, love it, count it an integral part of our system and urge that if I can not accept it, I must withdraw from the church.

In fulfilling their request, I now discern that I have for years been in a false position, and desire to set myself right.

The views I now hold and teach I have held and taught during my pastorates of the First Presbyterian church, at Evanston, and the Central church, of Chicago. What little light I have had has not been under a bushel. I have not believed one thing secretly and taught another openly. Holding back nothing, I have tried to give the light as the light has gone forth from God's word to me. But I now see that I have grieved and disturbed my brethren. The happiness and welfare of no one man should weigh for a moment against the welfare of all. As I am no longer a Calvinist in the old sense of the term, and could not today accept the unrevised confession of faith, I have decided to demit my ministry in the Presbyterian church and, beginning anew, to unite with some other body on the statement of my present belief

In going out from you, less some misunderstand my action, I wish to reaffirm my faith in what is called the great fundamental principles of Christianity. As never before I believe in God the Father, Maker of Heaven and Earth, and in His loving providence, in His all-helpful, all-comforting, all-guiding and regenerating spirit; in Jesus Christ, the world's Savior and Redeemer, and our way and truth and life; in man made in the image of God, and despite his sinfulness and ignorance he is sincerely and truthfully invited to come into the likeness to his father. I believe that what Christ was and did, and suffered for a few men through three and thirty years, God is, and does and suffers for all men, in all worlds through all ages. If the new scholarship has destroyed my old view of the Bible, as never before I believe the Bible to be the word of God, a light to my feet and a lamp to my path. After years of mental conflict and doubt, I have bought these faiths at a great price.

Nothing can wrest them from me. For me the principles of evangelical Christianity seem as firmly fixed as mountains and stars. So far, also, from loving the Christian church and the Christian ministry less, these views have strengthened my love until it has become an all-consuming passion. There are hours when I look out upon the multitudes going stumbling, blundering, weeping, falling, sinning and dying, when it seems to me I would die a thousand deaths to be permitted to give a cup of cold water only to one of Christ's little ones, or light one beacon fire to guide the pilgrim host struggling through the desert. And when I think of the poor in our tenement houses, of the prodigal sons and daughters in the streets of our great cities, upon men whose business it is to degrade their fellows, I see that what I once hoped to do for my fellows through schemes of social reform and philanthropy, can only be done by the influence of Jesus Christ, and His spirit manifested in His disciples who bear the burdens and sorrows of the people. For there is no dynamic in reform save the cross of Jesus Christ.

Of late, I have felt that the church was approaching a great crisis and that while we have been discussing the nature of inspiration and petty critical problems, the great world, weary and broken hearted and choked with fog and mist, have been asking whether or not there is a personal God; and while we have been trying each other for heresy, the multitudes have been turning away from the threshold of the Christian church to wander in the darkness and storm.

At the conclusion of the reading of the letter a motion to refer it to a committee of three for consideration was adopted, and Dr. J. G. K. McClure, president of Lake Forest university; Dr. William R. Notman, of the Fourth church, and Dr. W. J. Chichester, of the First church, were named, Dr. Herrick Johnson, president of McCormick Theological seminary, who had been named, withdrawing on the ground that he had already expressed his opinion in favor of the acceptance of Dr. Hillis' resignation. The committee spent some time in discussing the letter, and finally decided to ask for two weeks' time in which to consider the matter before making any recommendation to the presbytery, and the request was granted by a unanimous vote.

Although none of the members of the committee would express an opinion as to the probable recommendation to be made, many of the ministers present stated they did not favor allowing Dr. Hillis to demit, as his opinions on certain Presbyterian doctrines were not confined to himself and that, therefore, the erasure of his name from the rolls of the Presbyterian church would be opposed. Such action, they stated, would be regarded in a way as favorable to Dr. Hillis, as it would allow him to become a preacher of the Congregationrl church without doctrinal examination.

EXISTENCE OF WAR FORMALLY RECOGNIZED.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Secretary Root stated that Major George O. Kirkman, Forty-ninth volunteer infantry, is no longer in the service of the United States, by the approval of General Otis. The approval of the president is unnecessary. Kirkman was accused of being drunk on the transport Liverpool, on the voyage from San Francisco to Manila. Private advices also charged him with affronting Archbishop Chapelle, who was one of the passengers.

The construction given by the war department to General Otis' action in this case commits the department, it is believed, to a formal recognition of the existence of war in the Philippines. Article 106 of the articles of war expressly provides that the sentence of dismissal, in the case of an officer, shall not be carried out "in time of peace," except on the approval of the president of the United States.

PITTSBURG, April 3.—Twenty thousand mineworkers struck in the Pittsburg district, principall through misnnderstanding over the weight standard.

BOTH PARTIES GAINED.

Republicans' Increases Apparently Largest In Ohio.

DEMOCRATS WERE INDIFFERENT.

Then It Is Believed the Republicans Succeeded In Healing More of Factional Differences Than Did the Democrats. Results In Some Places.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—A summary of the results of tha municipal and township elections in Ohio indicate more Republican than Democratic gains, but no special cause for it is assigned, except that the Republican factions that have been fighting for years have evidently been getting together, and that the Democrats have shown more indifference than usual. This applies especially to the larger cities, but there have been Republican gains, according to the returns from rural districts and interior towns, that are not thus accounted for.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—The Republicans scored a success over the fusionists at the election here for all the city offices. They also have all members of the new board of public service for three years, which controls everything except the police and fire departments The board of legislation stands, 24 Republicans and 7 Democrats, and the board of education 24 Republicans and 4 Democrats.

Colonel Julius Fleischman, a millionaire Hebrew, is a very close friend to Senator Hanna, who is said to have requested the young man to make the race. He was elected by over 8,500 plurality over State Senator Alfred M. Cohen, the fusion candidate, together with the full Republican city ticket. There were six arrests for illegal voting.

COLUMBUS, April 3.—Rev. Washington Gladden, the eminent congregational clergyman, was elected to the city council, from the Seventh ward, defeating C. E. Miles, Republican, by 76 votes, out of a total of 1,800 cast. Dr. Gladden ran as an Independent candidate, though indorsed by the Democrats at their caucus.

NEWARK, O., April 3.—Newark went Democratic, the Democrats electing the whole city ticket, seven of the eight councilmen and three members of the board of education. For mayor Herbert Atherton, Dem., had 305 plurality.

TOLEDO, O., April 3.—The Republican city ticket was elected by about 2,000, but the Democratic gains in the council will probably give its control to that party. James Melvin is elected to the non-partisan school board, and the other member elected with him is probably John W. Dowd.

COLUMBUS, April 3.—Complete returns of election show that N. W. Dick, Dem., has been elected police judge over M. B. Darnhart, Rep., by 508 votes. The total vote was 22,140. Last spring the Republicans elected a mayor by about 1,500. The council stands 10 Republicans, 7 Democrats and 2 Independents. The proposition to issue $350,000 bonds for a market house was defeated. The franchise granted to the Federal Gas company was ratified.

DAYTON, O., April 3.—The election here, with a comparatively light vote, was a walkover for J. R. Lindmuth, Democratic candidate for mayor, by a majority of about 3,000.

WOOSTER, O., April 3.—The Democrats elect four members of the council; Republicans, one. The township is Democratic by 75 majority. There is no political change of officials.

MANSFIELD, O., April 3.—The Democrats here elected a waterworks trustee and justice of the peace. The council is Democratic and the school board, which has been Republican for years, is a tie.

MASSILLON, O., April 3.—The Republican mayor was elected by a large majority. The council is a tie, a gain of one for the Democrats. The other municipal officers broke even.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 3.—The Republicans carried this city, electing Frank Brown mayor by a majority of about 1,000; C. J. Mathew, solicitor, and W. A. Beecher, trustee of waterworks, completely revolutionizing the municipal administration, which for the past four years has been Democratic. The council continues Republican by 2 majority, as does the board of education.

HAMILTON, O., April 3.—The Democrats elected the entire city ticket by a majority of about 900, a falling off of about 100.

ZANESVILLE, O., April 3.—The result of this city is mixed. The Republicans elect the street commissioner and constables, while the Democrats get the water works trustee, cemetery trustee and justice.

CANTON, O., April 3.—The Republicans elected their entire city ticket by majorities ranging from 800 to 1,200. The big pluralities were on members of the school board, in which the women participated. The Republicans elected four out of seven councilmen. The Republicans get control of the school board, which last year was unanimously Democratic.

INFERNAL MACHINE SENT TO GEO. B. COX.

Failed to Explode, Owing to Rain Having Wet the Matches—He Had Heard of a Plot.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—An attempt was made to blow up George B. Cox, the Republican boss, at his home in Clifton.

The servant found a small wooden box on the porch and handed it to Mrs. Cox. She opened the sliding lid, which revealed a stick of carefully arranged dynamite.

WEBSTER DAVIS RESIGNS HIS SECRETARYSHIP.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The formal resignation of Webster Davis as assistant secretary of the interior was sent to the president through his private secretary. At the White House no statement was obtainable concerning the resignation other than the fact that it had been received, and the officials declined to say whether it would be accepted.

Mr. Davis decided to resign because of the acceptance of an invitation to deliver a lecture on the South African war, and he felt that as an official he could not express his views with such freedom as he could as a private citizen. The invitation was extended by non-partisan citizens of Washington and was not inspired in any way by persons directly connected with Boer interests.

Mr. Davis said in part:

"It is purely a matter of sympathy on my part. I went to South Africa unprejudiced, visited both armies, saw much of the British soldiers and people, and also much of the Boers. After seeing what I did, I made up my mind that the cause of the Boers was just.

"When I entered the train at Pretoria, on my return home, fully 2,000 men and women, mostly women, whose husbands and fathers and sons were at the front, gathered at the station to bid me goodby, and as the tears rolled down many of thir faces, they made the last request of me that I do everything within my power upon my return home to let the American people know of their exact condition; to let them know how they had been abused and outrageously misrepresented by the English.

"The English correspondents have no trouble in getting their dispatches over the cable lines, as they are controlled absolutely by the British, while it is impossible for information regarding the situation from the Boers' standpoint to reach the American people. If I did not, as a free American, decide to listen to their appeals, my conscience would burn and the faces of those suffering people, as brave and as noble as God ever let live in any land, would haunt me as long as I live.

"I am, therefore, determined to do everything in my humble way to assist them. Their cause is just and in God is their trust, and in the light of the past history of the American people who went through the same struggle, I believe the Boers will win."

Mr. Davis was asked what course he would have the people of this country pursue in order to assist the Boers. He replied: "Do anything and everything within their power, and let Great Britain and the world know that the sympathies of the American people are not with Great Britain, but with the Boers and in the interests of humanity and civilization.

"We should let the world know that such an unholy war should stop, and stop at once."

Dr. Barbarin Dead.

WASHINGTON, April 3. — Dr. Francis St. Clair Barbarin, for 27 years the curator of the Corcoran art gallery here, died at his home in Georgetown. He was born in Newport, R. I., 67 years ago.

Two Officers Escaped.

LOURENZO MARQUEZ, April 3.—Captain Haldane and Lieutenant LeMesurier, two British officers, arrived here from Pretoria, where they effected their escape,

The longest canal in the world is the Erie, in New York, extending from Albany to Buffalo, a distance of 381 miles. The cost of construction was $52,540,800.

FINAL DEBATE IS ON.

Porto Ricon Bill Comes to Vote This Afternoon.

THE HOUR SET IS 4 O'CLOCK.

Efforts Will Be Made, However, to Extend the Time, So as to Allow More Speechmaking—Senator Spooner a Brilliant Participant.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The final vote on the Porto Ricon tariff and government bill will be taken late this afternoon. It is arranged for 4 o'clock, but an effort will be made to extend the time for debate beyond that hour.

The speeches were good and the running debate bright and unusually lively, the speech of Mr. Spooner, of Wisconsin, particularly, the chamber seeming to scintillate with sparks, as he crossed augmentative swords with some of the best debaters on the Democratic side. His address, if so it could be called, was devoted almost wholly to a discussion of the constitutional questions involved in the pending bill.

Mr. Bate (Dem., Tenn.) opened the discussion with a carefully prepared speech in opposition to the bill. He was followed by Mr. Cullom (Rep., Ills.) in a vigorous speech supporting the measure. Then came Mr. Depew (Rep., N. Y.), a member of the committee which framed the bill, who made an eloquent and forceful defense of the measure. Mr. Spooner, who spoke next, was followed by Mr. Perkins (Rep., Cal.), also a member of the committee on Porto Rico, who presented a strong argument for the bill. The closing speech was delivered by Mr. Simon (Rep., Or.), who, in criticizing the measure, entered into a brief discussion of the political effects of its passage:

MAY REDUCE WAR TAX.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—A possible reduction of the war taxes was foreshadowed in a resolution adopted by the house calling upon the secretary of the treasury for information as to the probable surplus existing revenue laws would create during this and the coming fiscal year.

Under suspension of the rules bills were passed to open to settlement 418,000 acres in the Fort Hall Indian reservation and 2,500,000 acres in Oklahoma by ratifying the agreement with the Bannock and Shoshone Indians and the Kiowa, Commanche and Apaches; to divide the northern judicial district of New York into two districts and to appropriate $100,000 for a military post at Sheridan, Wy.

NEW YORK, April 3.—The stock market made a strong opening Monday on large buying orders, which had accumulated in commission houses over Sunday and in response to the continued demand for London account. The influence of Saturday's favorable bank statement was still felt and the room traders were inclined to the bull side. The strength of the market was not maintained.

Quite a number of usually inactive railroads were strong, notably the Lake Erie and Western stocks, the preferred stock jumping 15½ points, to par, and the common rising an extreme 4½. The fall in Sugar was accompanied by reports of new cuts in the price of coffee, the war in the coffee trade being waged by the same rival interests as that in the sugar trade. The weakness in the iron stocks seemed to be due to disappointment on the part of speculators over the showing of earnings made by the Federal Steel company. The drop in Federal Steel from the early high point was 4⅜ and in Steel and Wire over 3 points. Other stocks in the group were less actively traded in, but all showed weakness.

Money was easy, though not much effect was felt from the disbursement of quarterly interest and dividend payments. Sterling exchange continued its upward course, and the question is now arising whether the increase in the circulating medium by the operation of the law of March 14 may not result in the sending of gold abroad by relieving the need for it in circulation here. The process of taking out new circulation, which had come to a pause, is reported from Washington to have received a fresh impetus, and the sub-treasury in New York is again paying out large amounts for premiums on converted bonds.

The bond market was active Monday, Wabash debenture Bs being absorbed on a large scale. Prices generally are higher. Total sales, par value, $3,925,000.

United States refunding 2s, when issued, declined ½ and the 2s and old 4s ¼ in the bid price.

CHICAGO, April 3.—The corn market was active and strong Monday, helped by the heavy export demand and light offering and prices soared to the record for this season, May closing ¾c over Saturdry. The strength of corn turned the scale in favor of higher prices in the wheat pit which otherwise was afflicted with statistics of two sorts, May closing ⅜@½c higher. Provisions closed 5@7½c to 15c improved and May oats ¼@⅛c up.

General Carlin a Witness.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—General W. P. Carlin, U. S. A., retired, was a witness in the Coeur d'Alene investigation. He testified that he was in command of the United States troops in the Coeur d'Alenes during the trouble of 1892 and gave a recital of the disturbed condition there.

WEATHER FORECAST.

A Bismarck Story.

In M. Georges Michel's life of the late M. Leon Say some of the economist's letters are reproduced, and among them is one addressed to his wife describing the reception by Bismarck at Versailles of the war fine of £8,000,000 that Paris had to pay. M Leon Say was one of the commissioners sent with the money in bank notes to hand it over to German commissioners in Bismarck's presence. The £8,000,000 was counted on a billiard table. When this was done, a receipt was shown to M. Say and then placed in an envelope which was to be sealed.

The seal failing to bite into the wax, Bismarck impatiently said to the secretary, "You do not know your business."

He snatched the seal from him, rubbed it for a short time on the hair of his head and then said, "Try now."

According to the ancient practice of oriental monarchs, the Chinese emperor rewards those who bring him good news and punishes those who bring him bad news.

A Rapid Observer.

"How long were you there?" asked his friend.

FINAL DEBATE IS ON.

Porto Rican Bill Comes to Vote This Afternoon.

THE HOUR SET IS 4 O'CLOCK.

Efforts Will Be Made, However, to Extend the Time, So as to Allow More Speechmaking—Senator Spooner a Brilliant Participant.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The final vote on the Porto Rican tariff and government bill will be taken late this afternoon. It is arranged for 4 o'clock, but an effort will be made to extend the time for debate beyond that hour.

The speeches were good and the running debate bright and unusually lively, the speech of Mr. Spooner, of Wisconsin, particularly, the chamber seeming to scintillate with sparks, as he crossed augmentative swords with some of the best debaters on the Democratic side. His address, if so it could be called, was devoted almost wholly to a discussion of the constitutional questions involved in the pending bill.

Mr. Bate (Dem., Tenn.) opened the discussion with a carefully prepared speech in opposition to the bill. He was followed by Mr. Cullom (Rep., Ills.) in a vigorous speech supporting the measure. Then came Mr. Depew (Rep., N. Y.), a member of the committee which framed the bill, who made an eloquent and forceful defense of the measure. Mr. Spooner, who spoke next, was followed by Mr. Perkins (Rep., Cal.), also a member of the committee on Porto Rico, who presented a strong argument for the bill. The closing speech was delivered by Mr. Simon (Rep., Or.), who, in criticizing the measure, entered into a brief discussion of the political effects of its passage:

Its Mysterious Depths Were First Explored by Two Men of More Than Ordinary Courage—The Story of Their Perilous Journey.

Southwest Missouri is full of strange earth formations that are called "natural" curiosities in spite of their unnaturalness. The earth is full of caves and sink holes. One of the most celebrated of these is the Grand Gulf, in Oregon county, about four miles from Koshkonong. It is a sort of canyon, in shape not unlike a horseshoe and serves the purpose of a drainage bed in the wet season for a 12 mile area of hills. The canyon is 220 feet deep, with a natural bridge in one place and a subterranean lake and river that opens at one end. The river only exists during the wet season, for the earth at the bottom of the canyon is porous and absorbs the water. The lake, however, is full the whole year round.

This cave, containing the subterranean river and lake, had never been explored to the end till the summer of 1885, when Pat Foley, a saloon keeper from Thayer, with a companion performed the exploit. Foley had made two trips before into the cave, but had not been able to secure a companion courageous enough to persevere in the enterprise. Each man had weakened and returned before the end of the cave was reached. On the third trip, however, Foley had with him a man of courage.

The entrance to the cave is wide and deep. The bed is of broken stones, over which trickles a tiny stream of water in the dry season. A hundred feet inside the cave the entrance suddenly narrows into a hole so small that a man must get on hands and knees to pass through. Beyond this narrow hole the entrance widens into a large grotto. There is a steep hill to climb; next the hill descends sharply into a lake. To penetrate to the end of this lake it was necessary to have a boat so small that it could be dragged through the narrow passage into the grotto.

Foley and his companion built a boat of suitable size and hauled it through the narrow entrance. They took with them also a long coil of rope, a quantity of matches, some railroad lanterns and four torches with cotton wadding on the ends soaked in kerosene. The cave of course is perfectly dark. The men used their lanterns till they got through the narrow place, but to their amazement the lantern flames inside the grotto slowly grew dim and finally went out. They tried to light them again, but the sulphur of the matches would flare up only to be extinguished immediately. The reason of this was that the atmosphere was exceedingly damp and heavy.

The men succeeded in lighting the four kerosene torches, and grasping one of them in each hand they made their way down the slope to the lake and stood the torches up between the rocks. The torches smoldered like hot coals, giving out very little flame. The boat was dragged down to the lake, the torches fastened at the prow and stern, one end of the rope tied to a bowlder and the rest of the coil thrown in the boat. When the two men sat down in the frail craft they found the water rose to within three inches of the gunwales. It was impossible to use oars without tipping the boat far enough to sink it, so the men were forced to paddle cautiously with their hands.

They forced the little craft into the unknown lake, the smoldering torches lighting up the blackness for only a few feet around them. Outside it was a warm summer day, they knew, but inside it was like a closed refrigerator, all blackness and dampness and cold. The water of the lake was ice cold, and at every few dips they had to stop and warm their hands. There was nothing to be seen on any side—nothing but darkness. No sound could penetrate the cavern. If the boat should capsize—as it was likely to do with the slightest disturbance—they would be cramped in a minute in the cold water without a chance of help from the outside.

After a long and tedious paddling the boat's prow was suddenly buried in a bank of mud and gravel. Foley took a torch and stepped out cautiously in his rubber boots into the mud. He found he had come to the end of the lake and that a sharply inclined wall of rock rose before him. The saloon keeper climbed up the wall about 40 feet above the lake searching for a continuance of the cavern. But he could find none. Apparently the cavern ended there. He returned to the boat, where his companion sat. The two men made their way across the lake and out through the narrow place in safety. They had been gone an hour, and their friends outside had begun to fear an accident had happened to them.

So far as people know, the cave in the Grand Gulf has no outlet. The Indian traditions about the cave are that it was a subterranean waterway much used at one time by boatmen, who used to carry provisions in boats to the Arkansas valley. If this be true, the river must have been stopped up many years ago by some convulsion of nature and the lake formed then.—Kansas City Star.

FUNNY HUMAN NATURE.

A Little Story That Illustrates Some of Its Peculiar Phases.

Young men can never tell where to look for an ally in their love affairs. A few afternoons ago one of them was leaving a handsome residence in the upper part of the city. He walked unsteadily, he will never be paler, and it was evident that he was in great trouble. He scarcely noticed the brisk approach of the old gentleman who owns the house and the daughter, though the suitor had been diligently dodging the father for months.

"Hello! What's this? Sick?" and the old gentleman firmly planted himself in the way of the retreating lover. "You're not fit to go out in this storm, young man. Come inside. Take a drop of cordial. What do you mean, risking your life like this?"

"Not there, sir," in a faint voice. "I'll never enter that house again. Your daughter just refused me."

Now the father had told her a score of times to "get rid of that chap," but he is sympathetic and choleric.

"What," pounding the walk with his cane, "refused you? Jilted you? Put you in this awful state? The minx! She'll hear from me! Look as though you were dying, poor fellow! How many times have you asked her?"

"Once."

"Only once? Thunderation, man, I'll bet I asked her mother 50,000 times before she'd have me! It's in the blood. Come in here. No, take a walk around the block and then come. The idea of that girl thinking that she knows her own mind! It's absurd! Brace up, now We'll bring her to time."

And it looks as though they would. The old gentleman looks sheepish, the girl laughs often without apparent cause, and the youth calls regularly.—Detroit Free Press.

Tommy's Triumph.

"Does your father smoke, Tommy?" asked the teacher.

"Bacca!" cried Tommy.

"Tobacco, you mean, Tommy," corrected teacher. "Well, tobacco is often called 'the soothing weed.' But it is tobacco, Tommy, not 'bacca.' There is no such word in the dictionary."

"Yes, there is, sir," cried Tommy.

"You're mistaken, Tommy, there is not," said teacher severely. "But," he added, with a superior smile, "if you can show me the word 'bacca' in an English dictionary I will let you home an hour earlier than usual."

Teacher floored and Tommy triumphant.—London Answers.

Selfish Edward III.

King Edward III of England was a great epicure, but a selfish one. While he gorged himself with a multitude of courses and dishes, he forbade his servants eating meat or fish more than once a day and ordained by law that none of his subjects should have at dinner or supper more than two courses nor above three dishes for each course.

The Wretched Newspaper Man.

In every city of the land the newspaper man is an outcast. He knows more people to be a stranger to than any other being in the world. He has no holidays. His Christmas is the record of other men's joys. His Thanksgiving is a restaurant. Even the Fourth of July and Sunday, servants of the commonest man, refuse him their cheer. The Fourth of July is the day he must be in every place at once, because everything is happening, and Sunday is the day he must make things up, because nothing is happening.

His labors are our pleasures. He gets his vacation by doing another man's work and earns his living by watching other people live. The very days and the nights turn their natural backs upon him. The lamp is his sun by night, and the curtain is his night by day, and he eats his supper in the morning. His business is the reflection of life. He is the spirit behind the mirror. What is left to us is right to him, and right is left. Sometimes right side up is upside down.

The world is all awry to the newspaper man. It whirls across the hours in columns, now in one edition and now in another, but it heeds him never in return. He is a spectator. The show passes before his face—a shut out, unsharing face. He lives as the years go on, a notebook under the stars, and when the notebook is scribbled out he dies.—Gerald Stanley Lee in Atlantic.

The Emergency Clerk.

"I ran across a clerk here who is worth his weight in gold, or, at least, in gold bricks," said a guest at one of the hotels. "If I was in business in New Orleans, I would get that man if I had to chloroform and abduct him. The way I discovered his merits was this: I was standing in a store down the street, waiting for my wife to decide what she didn't want, when a tailor made girl walked up and asked to see some golf clubs. The young man behind the counter showed her several, and in a few moments she found one that suited her and went away with it under her arm.

"'Are there many players in New Orleans?' I asked after she had gone.

"A look of real pain crossed the young man's face. 'I am sorry,' he said, 'very sorry, but the fact is we sold our last golf links this morning. However, we have ordered a new stock,' he added, brightening up, 'and they will be here in a few days. Which did you wish, the plain or the—er—fancy links?'

"A clerk like that is beyond price, sir, perfectly invaluable. Ten years hence I expect to find him a merchant prince."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"Why did you take that man's case?" the fresh graduate of the law school asked after his father, the old attorney, had bowed a client out of the office. "There is no possibility that you can win it for him. One glance at his face shows that he is the briber and all around rascal he is accused of being."

"Is that so?" the old man replied. "I'm sorry to hear it—really sorry. I wish I had known it."

"Why, you must have been able to see for yourself if you are any judge of character at all."

"I am usually pretty good at such things, but I must confess that I didn't notice it in this case. In fact, I didn't see his face at all."

"Didn't see his face!"

"No. He had a wallet in his hand that took my eye. Now you go to work and copy off that brief, and after this if you want to learn the business watch me, not the other fellow's face."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Dangerous Eggs.

A young clerk received instructions from the proprietor of a produce house in Front street some days ago to put into a case of eggs a card marked "Guaranteed."

The proprietor thought no more about the matter until later in the day, when he was called to the phone by the purchaser.
